

Labor Board to Let Employers File Petitions For Elections

Right to be Granted In Certain Cases, Counsel Says

MAP REVISIONS

Changes in Regulations to Be Announced Soon, Fahy Declares

Washington (AP)—Charles Fahy, general counsel, said today the national labor board had decided to grant employers the right to petition for a collective bargaining election among their workers in certain cases.

Fahy made the statement to the house labor committee when Joseph Padway, general counsel of the American Federation of Labor, expressed the opinion the board probably would not take such a step.

Fahy said the board decided officially yesterday to make the change and would include it in a "whole set of revisions" in the board's regulations to be announced soon.

Need Safeguards

Chairman J. Warren Madden of the board had said several weeks ago that employers would be granted the right to ask for an election but told the committee such permission would have to be surrounded with safeguards to prevent employers from taking advantage of their organized employees.

David B. Clarke of Chicago, general counsel for the Illinois Manufacturers' association, urged congress today to repeal the "majority rule" provisions of the Wagner labor relations act before adjourning.

If it fails to do so, he said, it will find the country's industries "far more completely paralyzed than now" when it reconvenes next session.

"War for Control"

Testifying before the senate labor committee, Clarke said recent strife in the coal, automobile and other "strike-ridden" industries constituted "mere preliminary skirmishes to what is ahead of us."

The CIO and the A. F. of L. have now publicly declared a war to the finish on all fronts—a war for control over millions of workmen in industry," the witness said.

"This is a war between two powerful groups of labor union leaders to secure the spoils of victory under the national labor relations act."

It is a war to secure the power the national labor relations act gives to the victor under the "majority rule" provisions of that act," Clarke said the act provides that the union found by the labor board to represent a majority of workmen in a collective bargaining unit shall be the exclusive representative of all employees in the unit.

He contended this policy was unlike the democratic system of government in that there was no provision for minority representation.

Men from all over northern Wisconsin have volunteered to take part in the hunt.

Eight Persons Die When Fire Destroys Tenements in Heart Of Chinatown in New York City

New York (AP)—At least seven persons perished and an eighth was burned fatally in a fire that roared through the heart of Chinatown today.

Firemen, handicapped by intense heat and narrow streets, expressed fear that more victims would be found.

The blaze started shortly before dawn in a Doyer street tenement and spread quickly to an adjoining building.

Four firemen were injured in the battle to confine the fire to the two tenements.

Six bodies had been recovered from the smoking ruins three hours after the fire started and the body of the seventh victim was visible.

For half an hour after they had sighted a man clinging to a fire escape which threatened at any moment to fall, the firemen worked under a protective barrage of water to rescue the man. Eventually he was brought down, only to die later in a hospital.

Baseball Days Over for Gehrig

Medics Find He Is Suffering From Chronic Infantile Paralysis

New York (AP)—Ed Barrow, president of the New York Yankees, announced today that Lou Gehrig was suffering from chronic infantile paralysis and would never play baseball again.

Barrow's statement came after Gehrig had turned over to him the formal report made by Mayo clinic experts. Gehrig had spent several days in the clinic in order to have a thorough check made of his physical condition.

The one-time great first baseman had been worried about his condition all year. After making a bad showing in the field and at bat during the early part of the season, Gehrig voluntarily benched himself on May 2, thus ending his consecutive games streak at 2130 games.

Barrow said that Gehrig apparently had been suffering from the ailment for two years and that only his remarkable physique had enabled him to play.

The veteran will be continued on the Yankee payroll for the rest of the season at least and will remain an on-playing team captain.

Barrow said he understood from the physicians' report that the disease could be checked and that in any event it probably would not get worse.

Axis Naval Leaders Agree on Joint Action

Berlin (AP)—"Compete understanding" between naval chiefs of the Rome-Berlin axis on plans for united action of the German and Italian fleets in the event of war was announced officially today.

Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, German naval chief of staff, and Admiral Domenico Cavagnari, Italian undersecretary of the navy have been conferring at Friedrichshafen since yesterday.

The announcement here said their discussions were completed today "in a manner completely satisfactory to both sides." No other details were given.

Cavagnari and his aides were scheduled to return to Italy tomorrow after a sightseeing trip on Lake Constance this afternoon.

The naval conference followed a recent meeting of German-Italian army chiefs at Innsbruck for coordination of the two armies in wartime.

Skeleton of Woman Is Found in Minnesota

Ada, Minn. (AP)—A 15-year-old mystery was cleared today. County Attorney Lloyd J. Hetland said, by the discovery of the battered skeleton of Mrs. Emma Rabe buried where a hog house on her husband's farm had been torn down.

Hetland said she had been slain by a blow on the skull, but that he did not expect anyone would be tried for the killing because "the principal suspect is dead."

W. H. Rabe, the slain woman's husband, died last October, several years after he had sold the farm and moved to Gary, Minn. Mrs. Rabe disappeared July 18, 1924.

LaFollette Would Cut Income Tax Exemptions

Washington (AP)—Senator LaFollette (D-Wis.) prepared for introduction in the senate today legislation to reduce income tax exemptions to $500 for single persons and $2,000 for heads of families.

He sought to add it as an amendment to the revenue bill, which leaders are striving to act on before June 30. Present exemptions are $1,000 for single persons and $2,500 for married.

Jap Blockade Develops Into Waiting Game

Two Powers Apparently Preparing for Long Test of Patience

STILL FAR APART

Little Hope of Negotiations for Improvement of Situation

Tientsin (AP)—The eight-day-old Japanese blockade of the British and French concessions developed today into a determined test of patience between British and Japanese.

An official British report said 1,000 British women and children were being evacuated from the Tientsin foreign areas, preliminary to "an indefinite period of resistance."

Japanese military and diplomatic authorities indicated, on the other hand, they were "awaiting British overtures to break the present tense situation."

Japanese officials asserted they expected the British to back down, that London reports indicated talk of economic retaliation "virtually disappeared" and that "London realizes Japan will call Britain's bluff."

Bureau Refusal To Grant License Is Found Legal

Farm-Market Department Is Sustained in Kenosha County Case

Madison (AP)—The supreme court held today that the state department of agriculture and markets acted legally in denying a milk dealer's license for 1939 to Mrs. Alwine Gagnon, operator of a large dairy farm in the town of Somers, Kenosha county.

The high court reversed Circuit Judge Robert S. Cowie in one of three cases involving the department's power under the milk price regulation law.

Judge Cowie had ruled the department exceeded its powers and unreasonably denied Mrs. Gagnon a license. Her farm is within the Racine regulated milk market.

The supreme court decision, written by Justice Chester A. Fowler, contended that Mrs. Gagnon had sold over-test milk and cream at a price less than established prices, and that donations of products she made to hospital amounted to rebates and constituted an unfair trade practice.

No Other Decision

The court handed down no decision in the other two cases involving the National Guernsey Dairy company, and the Golden Harvest Dairy company, both of Racine. They also had been denied licenses.

Until several years ago her husband, C. J. Gagnon, operated the farm. He transferred the plant to

Townsend Doesn't Favor New Party

Will Act Later 'If We Don't Get What We Want,' He Asserts

Chicago (AP)—Clarifying the position of the Townsend national recovery plan regarding the formation of a new political party, Dr. Francis E. Townsend, president, said today his organization did not intend to take such action at the present time.

"But if we don't get what we want that's all we could do," he added in an interview.

Some confusion arose yesterday when a statement from the headquarters of the old age pension movement quoted Dr. Townsend as to the effect that "the possibility of forming a new political party would be considered at the fourth national convention in Indianapolis this week. Convention officials denied it."

If the necessity for a new party arose, Dr. Townsend said today, it probably would be called the Townsend party of California and expanded to the organization already operating here.

He expressed hope that his movement would receive cooperation from both the Democrats and the Republicans, and asserted that if such support were lacking "we'll take the reins away from them." If circumstances justified it, consideration of a new party would be taken up this fall, he said.

Great Lake Vessels Collide at Mouth Of St. Clair River

Port Huron, Mich. (AP)—The Great Lake freighters David P. Thompson and Alva C. Dinkey collided shortly after dawn today in the mouth of the St. Clair river at Port Huron and soon afterward the Thompson was put into shallow water on the Canadian side to avoid leakage.

No one was injured in the collision, which occurred at 5:25 a. m. as the vessels attempted to pass each other while the steamer Robert Paisley was turning around in the channel.

Captain A. J. Munroe of the Thompson said it had two holes amidships, one below the water line, but was in no immediate danger. The Thompson was upbound with a cargo of coal.

The Dinkey, loaded with iron ore, proceeded downstream toward Detroit after ascertaining that the Thompson was not in trouble.

Coast guardsmen at Port Huron said they did not know the extent of damage to the Dinkey but believed "she must be hurt in the bow because she left her anchor on the deck of the Thompson."

The Thompson, Dinkey and Paisley all are Cleveland boats.

Both machines were damaged about the front ends.

WPA Won't Authorize Public Building Jobs Costing Over $40,000

Washington (AP)—The works progress administration temporarily suspended today authorization of any new WPA public building projects costing more than the $40,000 limit set by the house in the new $1,735,000 relief bill.

Colonel F. C. Harrington, administrator, telegraphed state administrators not to start any project which did not have presidential sanction prior to June 14, which would exceed the house limit of $40,000 on non-federal or $50,000 on federal enterprises.

Aids explained Harrington sent the order to forestall possible complications should the senate accept the house restrictions which remain effective as of June 14. If the limitation were removed, however, they said, Harrington likely would revoke his order inasmuch as he has objected officially to the proposed limitation.

The relief bill now is before a senate appropriations subcommittee.

Says Specimen Not Part of Human Body

Madison (AP)—Dr. C. H. Bunting, University of Wisconsin pathologist, said today a specimen sent to him from Iron county was not part of a human body.

The specimen, which appeared to be a human arm, was found in the west branch of the Montreal river. Local officials began an investigation in the belief it was evidence of a gruesome crime.

At the request of the district attorney and Sheriff Sam Govanoni, Iron County Coroner Harry Meier sent the specimen to Dr. Bunting.

The university pathologist said he was positive it was not a part of a human body. He did not press his examination further, but expressed belief it may be the limb of a bear.

Rules Lower Tribunals Can Abate It Through Writs

LA CROSSE CASE

Affirms Hoppmann's Order in Finding Plan Is Lottery

Madison (AP)—The state supreme court held today that theater bank night constitutes a lottery in violation of the criminal law of Wisconsin.

While the tribunal refused to issue a temporary injunction against three LaCrosse theaters to prevent them from holding drawings, it said that the lower courts have the right to abate theater bank night as a public nuisance by injunctive process.

Granting of a temporary injunction, while the case is pending in the LaCrosse county circuit court, would be contrary to the usual custom of the high court, the decision said.

The justices affirmed an order of Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann overruling a demurrer by the LaCrosse Theaters company to a complaint filed by Circuit Judge Robert S. Cowie, who, in his rights as a citizen had brought a personal action to halt bank night.

In addition to claiming that bank night was not illegal the theater company insisted that Judge Cowie had no right to maintain a suit unless he could show he had suffered some special injury and that if the scheme is a lottery it could not be enjoined because it would come under the criminal law.

Overrules Contentions

The supreme court overruled the defendant on all these contentions. The decision, written by Justice Chester A. Fowler, follows:

"Many cases involving the scheme have been before the courts recently. In all of them it is held and now we agree that a lottery involves three elements. There must be a prize, chance and a consideration. Two of these elements manifestly exist in the instant case—a prize and a chance.

"The defendant insists that the element of consideration is absent; the state insists that it is present because of the increased number of ticket sales for admission on bank nights; and that while the individual drawing the winning number may not buy any tickets, and thus pay no consideration for his chance for the prize, yet the theater receives a consideration for allowing him the chance in the increased number of tickets sold to others for admission on the night of the drawing.

"It is of course manifest that the theater receives from its sales of tickets enough to make it pay to maintain the practice, else it would not continue it. Upon the question whether the additional sales induced by the offering of the prize constitutes a consideration, the courts are divided.

Question of Consideration

"The reason most generally given for holding the scheme a lottery is that the great number of those who purchase tickets for the chance of participating in the drawing, thus making the scheme profitable to the theater, furnish the consideration, although others are given chances.

"Others based their ruling upon the fact, or at least place emphasis upon it, that the furnishing of free chances is only a means taken to evade the point of necessary consideration and thus save the scheme from being held a lottery.

"We agree with the majority of the courts and hold the instant scheme constitutes a lottery. Manifestly a lottery is no less a lottery because the management of it gives away numbers entitling participation in the drawing to some persons. It is only all the more objectionable because it does not limit the drawings to the persons buying tickets and thus lessens the chance of those who pay for their tickets."

The decision said it appears that the courts of the United States and the courts of 13 states support the proposition that abatement of public nuisances is not denied on the ground that the matter involved constitutes a crime.

4 Youths Recaptured After 5-Mile Chase

Ladysmith, Wis. (AP)—Four honor prisoners who overpowered a guard and escaped from the state reformatory prison camp at Amberg Sunday night were recaptured yesterday after a five-mile chase through the woods near here.

Sheriff Ellsworth Wilson said the four offered no resistance after attempting to flee when their stolen automobile bogged down on a side road.

The convicts, as listed by the reformatory, are Matthew Slaven, 19, of Rockford, Ill., serving one to four years for statutory rape; Robert Vertigan, 23, of Ladysmith, one to three years for forgery; Clayton Dean, 17, of Madison, four to five years for robbery; and Edward Zemzinski, 20, of South Milwaukee, a year to 18 months for larceny.

Sheriff Wilson said the youths probably would be returned to the reformatory at Green Bay.

Roosevelt Will Not Give Hint on Political Plans Until After Congress Term Is Ended

Washington (AP)—Politicians who have been hoping for some inkling from the White House about 1940 apparently will have to go on hoping—at least until President Roosevelt makes his west coast trip after congress adjourns.

The chief executive made it plain at a press conference yesterday he would have nothing to say about a third term now or in the near future.

In fact, he gave this indication on three separate occasions, despite his laughing replies to questions designed to draw him out on the political topic of the hour.

Asked flatly whether he would be a candidate for reelection next year, Mr. Roosevelt smiled and returned a year-old admonition that reporters putting such queries "should stand in a corner with dunce caps on and faces to the wall."

Columbists, he said, had made a point last week of the fact he had omitted this "go stand in the corner" order when asked to comment on Secretary Ickes' magazine article advocating "Roosevelt for 1940." From now on he would make no such mistake, the president added.

Prior to this question, someone asked whether he had talked about politics with Mayor La Guardia of New York earlier in the day.

The president laughingly said the reporter was getting into the hot seat.

"You mean the question was 'hot'?" a newspaper woman inquired.

He did not mean that, but that the weather was hot.

Then Ruby A. Black, the Appleton Post-Crescent's Washington reporter, tried another tack. She asked:

"Mr. President, would I be stood in the corner if I asked you a comment on the significance of:

1. Secretary Wallace's pro-New Deal speech Saturday before the Democratic Party Organization of Wisconsin, followed by adoption of a resolution expressing that factious "hope and prayer" Mr. Roosevelt would be re-elected.

Believe Slayer May Attempt to Liberate Wife

County Jail at Hayward Guarded in Hope of Capturing Ray Olson

Hayward, Wis.—(4)—While a posse broadened its search for Ray Olson, north woods killer of two deputies, Sheriff George Seebuetter ordered a vigilant guard over the county jail here today on the theory the fugitive might attempt to free his wife, Dolores.

In making his escape from a county traffic officer last Thursday, Olson abandoned his wife, who was brought here on a charge of possessing stolen property.

The sheriff reported Indian John Blue Sky, detained for questioning after he gave the alarm for Olson Saturday, declared Olson told him he would come to the jail for his wife.

Three other Indians also were in custody for questioning by authorities.

The sheriff centered the search today, as previously, in the Moose lake area, expressing doubt that a bearded man reported seen in an adjoining county yesterday was Olson.

Find Stolen Food

Some of the food stolen by the killer from the Moose lake store in a raid Monday was found yesterday afternoon in a shack near that of Blue Sky, where Olson slew two deputies last Saturday.

Squads of deputies, however, were stationed near Radisson, to the southwest, and the sheriffs of neighboring Rusk and Washburn counties had patrols out.

Sheriff Seebuetter expressed belief Olson would have to come out of the woods today for food or would make a new effort to escape from this area.

The heavily bearded man reported to answer the description of the 30-year-old former convict was seen near Bruce, about 30 miles south of here, Sheriff Ellsworth Wilson of Rusk county said. Minneapolis salesman, W. H. Malone, reported picking up the bearded man on Highway 27 near Exeland, just inside the Sawyer county line.

Those detained were questioned closely in the belief Olson might have threatened them, and they were afraid to reveal any knowledge of his movements. The questioning continued through the morning.

Some possmen expressed belief the fugitive had received help from friendly woodsmen and is holed up in the Chippewa flowage area. In this connection, it was said that if it was Olson who was picked up by the salesmen yesterday, he must have received assistance in making his way through the wild brush country to get as far south as Radisson or Exeland. The possmen doubted Olson could have covered the distance on foot through the woods.

The salesman gave the man armed with a rifle—a ride in his car to a point north of Bruce. There the man left the car after borrowing 70 cents from Malone, the sheriff said.

August Hoff, a farmer, told authorities he saw the man get out of Malone's car and head back north—as though doubling back on his tracks.

Fail To Find Trail
A bloodhound, rushed to the scene from Hayward, was unable to pick up the trail, but Sheriff Wilson immediately posted guards and volunteers at all nearby road crossings.

The possmen, northwoods residents and vacationers have doggedly kept on the trail since Olson Saturday shot and killed Deputies Fred Scott, 46, and Cully Johnson, 37, when they attempted to arrest him on their charges.

Several times they sent rifle and machine gun slugs and tear gas shells crashing into shacks and cabins to which bloodhounds had led them, but each time they found their quarry had flown.

Olson has been identified as August Buelo, who served time in the state prison for burglary and escapement in 1937 after having been sentenced to six months for stealing muskrat hides, Sawyer County District Attorney J. C. Davis reported yesterday.

Mayor Hoan, Who Once Condemned Kings, Welcomes Royalty

Milwaukee—(4)—Mayor Daniel W. Hoan—now 20 years ago vehemently declared "To hell with kings! I stand for the working man!"—held out a welcoming hand yesterday to Crown Prince Olav and Princess Martha of Norway.

The mayor, who made his widely noted remark in refusing to act as official host to King Albert of Belgium, greeted the visiting royalty at a public reception during which he praised Norwegians as "battlers for peace and not for war."

Earlier the mayor had put his stamp of approval on Olav and Martha by remarking that they were "plain people."

When plans for the reception were announced some weeks ago, Hoan explained that time had flown and that he was now a "king's man."

Opportunity School Boys Aided Janitors To Condition Building

Boys attending the opportunity school made a number of building improvements and helped to condition the Carrie E. Morgan school during the last year, according to Roland Nock, Morgan school principal.

Rudolph Gauerke, an instructor, supervised the work which included reconditioning of a dining room set, a library table for the orthopedic school, a number of chairs and table tops. The boys removed supplies to the attic, salvaged usable lumber and supplies stored in the basement and remodeled utility cabinets for the home art room.

Shower room benches were constructed from old lumber and a drying room was arranged for the locker room. They built shelves for the manual arts department, and made and repaired games for the game room. The boys also built a supply cabinet for the manual arts department.

State Nears End Of Case Against Fond du Lac Man

40 Witnesses Appear in Effort to Convict Medberry of Slaying

Akron, Colo.—(4)—The state may rest its case late today against Ellsworth E. Medberry, 22, pictured by witnesses as a hitchhiker who shot a traveling salesman because "he wanted to go one way and I wanted to go another."

Nearly 40 witnesses have been called by the state in its effort to convict the Fond du Lac, Wis., youth of slaying John T. Gray, 32, Colorado Springs soap salesman, whose body was found March 10 in a shed at a rural school house near Akron.

Mrs. Gray, who through most of the trial has sat across the aisle from Medberry's bride of a year, may be the last prosecution witness.

Supports Testimony
Sheriff Lowell H. Talheim of Fond du Lac, where Medberry was arrested, supported the testimony of his townsman, Police Lieutenant Otto Domrochs, who told the jury Medberry nodded affirmative when asked outright, "You mean to tell us you shot this man?"

Talheim said that when he asked, "What did you do to that fellow, shoot him?" Medberry replied: "Yes, I did, I lost my head."

Deputy Sheriff Harold J. Hargrove related he asked Medberry if he and Gray had fought.

"Yes, I wanted to go one way and he wanted to go another," Hargrove said Medberry replied.

Both Talheim and Police Chief James H. Silgen of Fond du Lac said Medberry asked them what means of capital punishment Colorado used. Colorado execution is by gas.

Ordered From Car
Domrochs testified Medberry told him he killed Gray because the salesman asked him to get out of his automobile, pointing out his employer, the Proctor and Gamble company, forbids employees to pick up hitchhikers.

District Judge Arlington Taylor, who heard Domrochs' testimony in chambers before admitting it to the jury, said it contained "a confession of guilt with all the necessary elements and earmarks which the law required to constitute a confession."

Without evidence of a confession or testimony of eyewitnesses, the state cannot ask the death penalty. Domrochs said Medberry related how he drove into Denver in Gray's automobile, abandoned it there, was arrested on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon, was released with a suspended fine, and hitchhiked back to Fond du Lac.

Asked if the salesman made any proposition or indecent suggestion to him, Medberry replied, "no," Domrochs said.

Bureau Refusal To Grant License Is Found Legal

his wife because of ill health and for a short time in 1937 it was operated by a son-in-law, a daughter and a driver for the plant under a joint arrangement.

The Gagnons at one time purchased milk from neighboring farmers but last February, when the request for a license was denied, their dairy utilized only the milk from their own herds.

Violated Regulations
The department contended that despite repeated warnings the Gagnon plant sold over-test milk and violated fixed price regulations and therefore was not entitled to a license.

Holding that some of the alleged violations were minor, Judge Cowie ruled that, in any event, the department had no power to take action which would prevent a farmer from retaining his own milk if all sanitary regulations were followed.

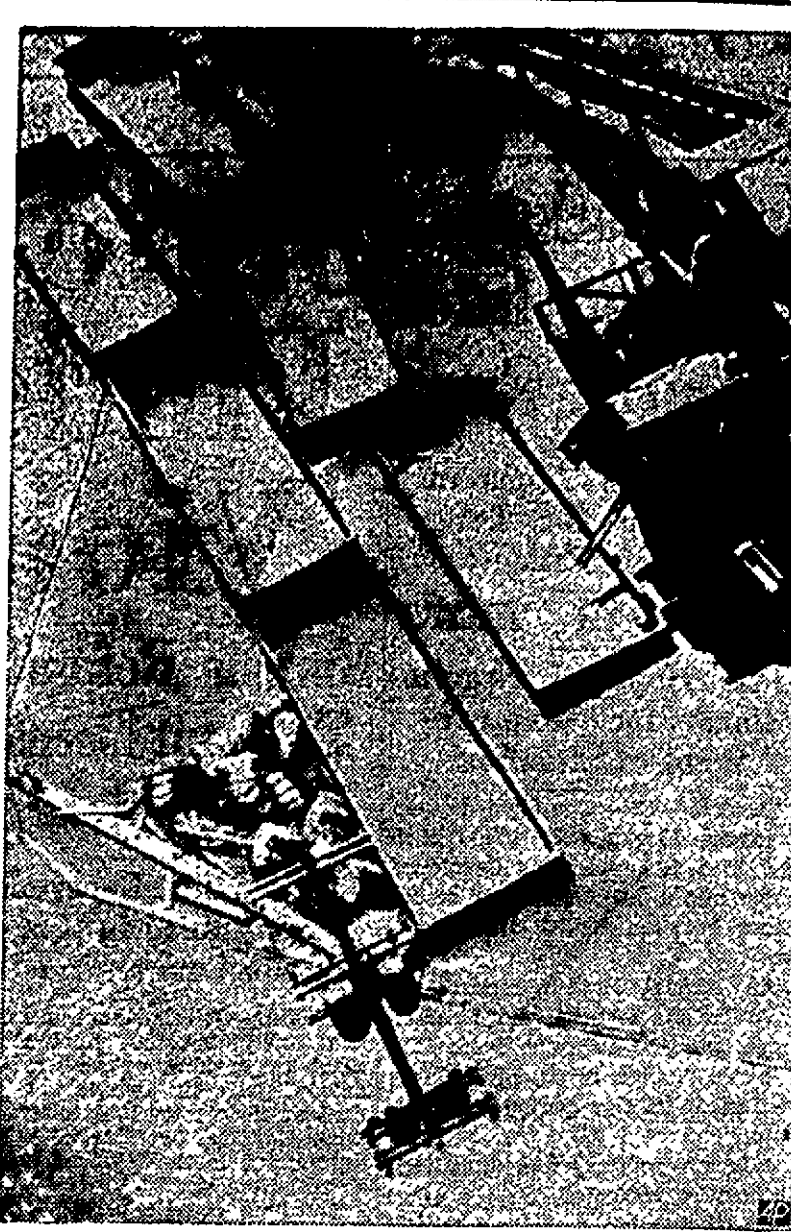

He said denial of a license to Mrs. Gagnon amounted to destroying the business of the farm and dairy and was unconstitutional. The department appealed from his decision.

City Officials' Softball Team to Play Fond du Lac

The newly formed city softball team, made up of city officials and employees, will meet Fond du Lac city officers Sunday, July 9, at Fond du Lac, Alderman McGillan, team captain, said today.

And that isn't all, the team wants other games and would like to play that Appleton girls' team, even if it has to take a beating. Dorothea Leisner, deputy city clerk, has been assigned to carry the adding machine—to keep track of the opponents' scores.

McGillan said the team will practice at 10 o'clock Sunday morning at Pierce park and he would like to see all players there.

Claude N. Greisch, deputy health officer, is warming up the old ham-bone and is expected to do most of the hurrying while either Clarence Baetz, sewage plant head, or Alderman Bogan will be behind the rubber.

On first base will be Walter Rydzin, plumbing inspector; at second Art Hartzheim, assistant electrical inspector; and at third base, Alderman McGillan. Alderman Brautigam, a former ball player, will be at shortstop while Henry Crowe, who works in the engineer's office will be at right shortstop.

In the outfield will be Joseph Doerfler, assistant assessor, centerfield; Alderman Feavel, leftfield; and Alderman Reifeld, rightfield. Utility men are Carl J. Beecher, city clerk; John A. Pierre, building inspector; Alfred Wickesberg, city engineer; Harry P. Hoefel, city attorney; and Elmer O'Keefe, who also works in the engineer's office.

Alderman Falatich and O'Keefe will be line coaches: Hazel Sackett, who works in the assessor's office, will be water girl. George Peotter, assessor, Joseph A. Kox, treasurer, Mrs. Josephine Versteegen, city nurse, and Dr. F. J. Huberty, physician, will be on the first aid squad. Frank Vandenberg, city hall janitor, will be the bat boy.

New Home, Garage to Be Built on N. Erb

A permit has been issued J. C. Hartman to construct a home and garage at 1700 N. Erb street, according to records at the city building inspector's office. The frame residence and garage will cost $3,000, it is estimated. The home will be 30 feet wide, 26 feet long, and eight feet high.

The Kimberly Real Estate company has been granted a permit to build a garage at 1136 W. Fourth street, costing about $125. Mrs. Irene Schmieding, 325 E. Hancock street, has been granted permission to remodel a garage, at a cost of $25.

Kenzie and Graess' gifts "but I made him give it back."

Tic also charged that he had been ordered by McKenzie to shoot a deer for Elmer S. Hall of Green Bay who was then conservation commissioner, on a hunting trip near Argonne.

Warden Robinson, now chief of the northeastern Wisconsin game area, said he accompanied Hall and Tic on that trip, and that the version of the deer killing incident he remembers is entirely different from that sworn to by the Shawano man.

Hall shot the deer, not Tic, Robinson insisted.

Tic and another warden had been driving for the party, which included several persons besides Commissioner Hall. They drove out two bucks on the run-way, and Hall shot one of them.

"It was impossible for Tic to shoot the deer," Robinson testified.

McKenzie said that all records of his department are open to inspection, and he invited the legislators to examine them. He said that Tic's department record, filed with the committee, needed no further discussion. "You can see for yourself."

Speaking of "good old Elmer Hall," and his involvement in the Tic charges, he said that "Tic has not only falsified in this, but in other things."

Kramer agreed with McKenzie's recollection that Tic had already collected some money for the McKenzie charges.

Nearly One-Third Of Graduates Will Enrol in Colleges

Number of Employed Youths Slightly More Than Those Unemployed

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—The University of Wisconsin extension division, after putting them under the academic microscope, today published its finding on the occupational distribution of 93 high school graduating classes in northeastern Wisconsin.

The largest percentage of the 4,572 students are continuing their education, either at home or at college, while almost as many are unemployed as employed.

There is little correlation between the number of young people in a community who are idle and the number continuing their education," a university announcement on the results of the study said. "In some communities more are idle, while in other communities the larger number continue to study."

The study was made of the 1938 graduating classes of schools in the Appleton area and vicinity.

Seek More Education
Thirty one per cent of the graduates are continuing their education, it was shown, indicating that the young people of today no longer consider high school training a sufficient preparation for a career.

A little more than 23 per cent are at home and unemployed, the study revealed, while slightly more than a quarter of the graduates have jobs. An additional 526 graduates are either helping on their fathers' farms or doing odd jobs in their home communities.

In almost half of the communities examined, more of the young people have gone to college away from home than remained at home in idleness, according to the report. The greatest variance was found in Stevens Point, where five public high school graduates went to school away from home, while 68 are at home unemployed. (That was despite the fact that Stevens Point is the location of a state teachers' college.)

Among the schools whose graduates were surveyed were those in the immediate vicinity of Appleton: Freedom, Green Bay West, New London, Weyauwega, Appleton, Neenah, Pulaski, West De Pere, Bear Creek, Marion, Menasha, Denmark, Kimberly, Tigerton, Wittenberg, De Pere, Hortonville, Iola, Scandinavia, Seymour, Shiocton, Stockbridge, Shawano.

Cheese Moisture Bill Is Signed

Governor Also Affixes Signature to Inheritance Tax Exemption

Madison—(4)—A bill signed by Governor Julius Heil fixed the legal maximum of moisture in Wisconsin-produced brick cheese today at 43 per cent, allowing tolerance of one per cent.

Author of the measure was Senator Jesse T. Peters (D) of Hartford. A bill by Assemblyman Eugene Engenstrom (R) of Beloit, also signed yesterday by Heil, exempts from the state inheritance tax insurance of $10,000 or less payable to a beneficiary or beneficiaries other than the estate of the insured.

The governor also signed bills: Enabling school boards to determine what compensation its members shall receive and to make allowance for the sum in school tax assessment.

Authorizing county boards to purchase publications dealing with government problems for board members.

Property Tax of Wisconsin Towns Averages $16.77

Florence County Unit Has Highest, Sheboygan County Lowest

Madison—(4)—The state tax commission reported today the average rate of tax on general property in Wisconsin townships last year was $16.77 per $1,000 of full valuation but towns in the northern counties levied rates as high as $63.65.

The town figure was that of the town of Tippler, in Florence county. The lowest town tax rate was in Wilson, Sheboygan county, which levied $2.61 per $1,000.

"It is significant to note that the town having the highest full value tax rates are without exception in the northern counties," the commission said. "On the other hand, towns having the lowest full value rates are generally to be found in the southern counties. The low tax rates which prevail in these towns are for the most part due to the fact that such towns are favored by the location within borders of either large utility or industrial enterprises."

The commission noted that 19 towns have full property valuations of less than $100,000, some only slightly more than half that amount.

They include, Komensky, Millston and Bear Bluff in Jackson county; Cedar Rapids, Wilkinsons, Wilson and Big Falls in Rusk; Scott in Monroe; Finley and Kingston in Juneau; Purish in Langlade; Wilson and Somo in Lincoln; Stinnett in Washburn; Blaine in Burnett; Foster in Clark; Lynne and Little Rice in Oneida; Tippler in Florence.

In addition to Tippler, towns having tax rates ranging between $44.34 and $63.65 per $1,000 were: Amberg in Marinette; Iron River in Bayfield; Prentice and Fiffeld in Price; Long Lake in Florence; Brockway in Jackson; Swiss in Burnett; Nashville in Forest; Ojibway in Sawyer.

'Rising Sun' Tries to Set on British Empire as 'Have-Nots'

Stir Up Crisis Upon Crisis

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
New York—(4)—If you hew out some of the trees so that you can see the forest—that is, if you look behind the human drama in the Tientsin blockade, Hitler's drive to the east, and Mussolini's maneuvers in the Mediterranean zone—you find the British Empire facing the gravest crisis of its long history.

The sum total of these rather widely-separated movements is that England has been put on the spot by the so-called "have-not" nations—Germany, Italy and Japan.

The "have-nots" are definitely challenging Britain's right to so large a place in the sun.

The time has arrived when the English have been called upon to substantiate their proud claim that Britannia rules the waves, and that the sun never sets on the British empire.

Prestige Threatened
The Tientsin affair, which represents the latest and one of the most serious of the international crises, isn't an isolated incident but is part of the Anglo-Japanese struggle for economic and political power in China. Its settlement would change the trend of affairs in any marked degree.

British prestige in the Far East is threatened, and every such threat is a potential menace to the security of empire, as British statesmen readily acknowledge.

In Europe the hot issue still is the Nazi claim on Danzig and the Polish stand against German annexation. But here, again, while Danzig provides a threat it is merely an incident in Germany's drive for influence in eastern Europe. And the drive is pointed toward Turkey and the Dardanelles, which Britain must control if she is to maintain her domination of the Mediterranean and the Near East.

Then there is Italy constantly reaching to break into the Mediterranean preserves of both France and England. The British have claimed that some of their grievous troubles with the Arabs in Palestine are due to Italian propaganda against England.

Facing Showdown
I was talking with an English observer on this general subject and he agreed with the summation that the British empire is facing a showdown.

"Our trouble," he said, "is that we are suffering from 20 years of peace talk."

Spirit of non-aggression has entered into the blood and tone of our people. We have even to settle disputes by negotiation so as to avoid war.

"This attitude has been mistaken in some quarters for fear. Britain has much to lose in any war, but we will fight if necessary to defend our empire."

Britain's recognition of the threat to her influence, and even security of empire, has been marked among other ways by the recent visit of the king and queen to Canada and the United States.

That visit was an effort to knit the great Canadian dominion closer to the mother country. And it was calculated to strengthen Anglo-American ties.

It was reported some time ago that King George would visit the other dominions in due course.

The king's brother, the Duke of Kent, is being sent to Australia as governor general, with the idea of increasing the prestige of the throne in that vast country.

One of England's worries always must be the extent of her possessions, which have been flung about the whole world like wheat from the hands of the sower. Her great possessions in the Far East naturally would be the most difficult to defend because of their distance.

Thus the Tientsin situation is regarded in many capitals with much concern.

Legalized Horse Racing Backed at Hearing on Bill

Described as Boost for Tourist Business and Source of Revenue

Madison—(4)—Legalized horse racing was described by its legislative friends yesterday as a boost for the tourist business, a weapon against unemployment and a stimulus to the horsebreeding industry.

Amendments to the Mace bill, legalizing racing and parimutuel betting, drew no opposition at a public hearing by the assembly taxation committee.

The measure originally embodied chain stores and theater axes, casually came along gasoline and come levies, state support of schools and highways and a general revision of the state tax structure. The amendments retained only the racing and betting provisions.

Gruska (R), Mosinee, (Bichler (D), Belgium, and Mace (P), Superior, submitted substantially similar substitute measures, Bichler and Mace jointly.

Annual License Fee
The Gruska substitute would levy a $500 annual license fee on track operators plus 10 cents on each admission ticket, 50 per cent of the "break," the odd change less than a dime for the winnings, and 3 per cent of all money bet.

A three-man commission appointed by the governor would supervise racing. The secretary would receive not more than $2,500 annually.

The number of tracks would be limited to three at least 100 miles apart operating without schedule conflicts and proceeds, estimated at about $2,000,000 annually, would be split equally between old age pensions and property tax reduction purposes.

"New Industry"
Mace's measure is substantially the same except that it provides for more specific regulation by the governing commission and assesses a $500 daily fee, 25 cents from each admission and 4 to 5 per cent on all bets.

Mace said it would raise about $6,000,000 exclusively for old age aid.

Gruska said there was "nothing bad" about racing and betting at well supervised tracks, horsebreeding would become "a new industry," the tourist trade would be swelled and unemployment relieved.

Bichler said his measure set up specific safeguards against racketeers or "any shady practices," and added:

"This is a way we can recapture many of the millions of dollars which are leaking out of the state. People in Racine, Kenosha and Milwaukee have to go to Chicago to bet on the races. Let us bring gambling out in the open and obtain some revenue from it."

9 Milk Dealers File License Applications

Only nine of Appleton's twenty-six milk dealers have applied for 1939 licenses to operate in the city, according to Claude N. Greisch, deputy health officer, who said the deadline for applications was June 16. Greisch said the dealers must have their licenses by July 1 or they will not be allowed to operate in the city. Medical examinations for employees are necessary before licenses will be granted.

Administration Will Fight For Vote on Arms Embargo

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Threats of protracted senate debate over neutrality find the administration determined to fight to a finish for repeal of the arms embargo provision and make all munitions and raw materials eligible for cash and carry sale in event of war.

This situation points to considerable delay in the adjournment of congress. The house is expected to consider the revised neutrality bill this week and Democratic whips have been meeting to organize their forces. No great difficulty is foreseen in obtaining the approval of the house.

But in the senate some 20 senators are ready to talk at length against repeal of the arms embargo. To avoid continuing the session far into the summer, some in the senate have urged that, after the house acts, the neutrality question be allowed to go over until next winter when the senate could act at its leisure.

This proposed delay would be dangerous in the opinion of some high administration officials.

As they see the situation, the failure of congress to repeal the arms embargo before leaving on summer just the encouragement they needed to go into action.

While officials have considered that the odds were against war in Europe in the near future, conditions now shaping up cause some weakening in this belief.

Pressure of the Japanese against foreign concessions in China is a significant development at the far end of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo triangle. Agitation for return of Danzig to Germany grows more vociferous. In the Mediterranean, Italy is watchful for a chance at Tunisia.

Thus none of the three triangle powers is satiated. On the contrary, all are pressing for fulfillment of their programs of absorption. The critical period is likely to come late in the summer, after the harvest. On the basis of the situation as it stands then may well rest the decision of the three powers as to whether the time for action has come.

American Resources Will Play Major Role

Many factors must enter into such a decision.

We may be certain that, among these factors, one of the most important will be the question of American material resources. Both in Europe and in the far east, the United States is inevitably a large unknown factor. Will our resources be available to the defending nations?

If the arms embargo is retained, if the proposed repeal is delayed because of opposition in the senate and congress adjourns leaving it on the books, it then becomes evident to the aggressor powers that their potential enemies cannot count upon obtaining needed munitions from America and the path is just that much clearer. On the other hand, as it is seen by officials here, repeal of the arms embargo would have the effect of giving pause to any impulse to action on the part of the dictators.

Administration Seeks Course of Prevention

There is not a real meeting of minds between the senate and the administration on the issue. The senate isolationists are thinking of what would happen if war broke out. The administration is thinking of the course best calculated to discourage anyone from starting a war.

Officials in intimate touch with the complexities of the world situation see so many possibilities of trouble for us, once a general war has begun, that they feel the most important thing is to discourage the starting of a war, rather than legislating for future contingencies, the nature of which cannot be foreseen.

Werner Confirms Ruling in Indian Car License Case

Decides Highway in Reservation Is Under State Jurisdiction

Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner Tuesday ruled that a Menominee Indian on a state highway comes under the jurisdiction of the state government when he upheld the lower court which imposed a fine of $10 and costs on Ralph Tucker for operating an unregistered vehicle on State trunk Highway 47 within the Menominee Indian reservation. The decision was far-reaching in that it was followed closely by state and county enforcement officers operating near reservations. There was no precedent for the case. Tucker was fined in December, 1938 after his arrest by a Shawano county traffic officer and the case was appealed by federal attorneys who alleged that Tucker, as an enrolled Menominee operating within the Reservation, was not amenable to state law.

Judge Werner heard the case on June 2 and took it under advisement until yesterday when his decision was announced. The decision included comprehensive survey of the relationship between state and federal laws.

The decision in part reads: "If, as contended, the state is without jurisdiction to prosecute the charge against Tucker, for failing to have a license as required by law, when it is undisputed that the defendant is operating a tractor truck on and over Highway 47, and that the title is not strictly in him, but that he is maintaining a contract relation with a white man, outside the reservation, and if he asserts the right to operate this motor truck and trailer on and over Highway 47 without a license, for compensation for the use of the tractor truck and trailer and for his personal service, when the Menominee mills are operating and functioning in a proprietary capacity, in the interests of the Indians, in competition with like business in the state of Wisconsin, and then claim that he is not amenable to the state laws regulating the law of the road, then he may, with impunity and disregard of the law, park his tractor truck and trailer on the highway and obstruct the highway; he may drive his truck and tractor in a state of intoxication, and do many acts which are regulated by the laws of the road with impunity and without fear of being responsible to the government, and preclude the states from exercising the police power and general jurisdiction for the security of lives, limbs, health and comfort of persons and the protection of property, even though interstate commerce might be incidentally affected."

Further Plans for Memorial Fund to Car Crash Victims

Plans are being furthered for the establishment of a permanent fund to send boys and girls to Boy and Girl Scout camps as a memorial to Madge (Pete) Courtney and William (Billie) Frawley, two Appleton young people who were fatally injured in a crash last Saturday evening in Calumet county. The memorial fund is being created by friends of the crash victims who are contributing to it instead of sending flowers. The plan was approved by Mr. and Mrs. Dan J. Courtney and Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Frawley, parents of the two young people. Kenneth Dickinson, Insurance building, and Dorothy Frank, 228 N. Park avenue, are in charge of the contributions which today amounted to about $200.

'Autoist Found Guilty Of Jumping Arterial

Joseph Stoeger, 1601 S. Jefferson street, was found guilty of failing to stop for an arterial and was fined $1 and costs by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court yesterday afternoon. Stoeger, who was arrested by city police, had pleaded not guilty. John Casparian, 224 E. College avenue, was fined $1 and costs in municipal court this morning after pleading guilty of violating the city 60-minute parking law.

Official Summer Season Will Open Early Tomorrow Morning

If you're been talking about it being summer, you've been in error, because the summer season slips into town about 2:40 tomorrow morning. That is the hour the almanac gives for the summer solstice. Calculators have it that the sun should rise about 5:15 tomorrow morning in Appleton and set about 7:32 in the evening. For all practical purposes, the sun may just as well not be setting above Appleton and vicinity at all tomorrow, because rain clouds are likely to shut off its rays. Clouds steadily gathered over the city today and early this afternoon a shower started. The Milwaukee weather bureau predicts more showers for tonight and tomorrow in this vicinity and in the state in general.

It's a Girl, Sex-Predeterminator Admits He Made 'Miscalculation'

Newark, N. J.—(P)—Sidney A. Fortel's son turned out to be a girl but the 35-year-old self-taught sex predeterminator said today it just goes to show that sometimes figures do lie. "I must have made a miscalculation," he said after he had gotten over the surprise of becoming the father of the 6-pound, 12-ounce girl yesterday afternoon. "But as wrong as I am, I'm right. And we're going to have another baby and there'll be no mistake."

The Fortel offspring arrived at Beth Israel hospital two days after the deadline Fortel set for the arrival of a "son." Buckling down to the task of determining the exact reason for the flopping of his predetermination, Fortel announced he was definitely not giving up and was going to study harder than ever to prove he had not wasted 20 years studying sex-predetermination for nothing. Mrs. Fortel, 25, and her daughter were reported doing well at the hospital. Fortel was bitten by the sex predetermination bug when a young man because he was the only boy in a family of eight children. "I wanted to know why," he said, "so I studied the subject in all the medical books for 20 years."

Reorganization of Road Department Beaten in Senate to prevent revival of the bill, was blocked by Floor Leader Coakley, who placed a call on the senate. The majority group was unable to lift the call because it needed 17 votes and Sauld and White, were absent without leave and could not be recalled immediately. The senate proceeded with other business without disposing of the issue. During discussion of the bill Roosevelt's contention was that the reorganization "apparently is being controlled and manipulated." He charged that some counties have been favored over others in the distribution of highway funds. Sees Dictatorship

"Since the commission is primarily an administrative body," he argued, "it would be better to place the responsibility in the hands of one man." Gettelman warned that substitution of a director for a commission would lead to dictatorship. Nelson, who recalled the commission system in the department was first established by a Republican administration under bill introduced by Walter Goodland, now lieutenant governor, declared it would be unwise to entrust $70,000,000 of highway funds every two years to one man.

He contended there was more highway construction going on in northern counties than in the southern half of the state because the northern counties had "bonded themselves to the hilt to become eligible for these funds," while the southern counties refused to issue bonds.

Eight Perish in Chinatown Fire

17 Doyer street. Half dressed Chinese men, women and children scrambled through the front doors of the two buildings, climbed from windows and ran crying down fire escapes. On man stopped to dress. The firemen found him later, dead with a half-burned sock in his hand. A woman and her husband picked up their two cats and a handful of belongings and slipped from a window. Another man, trapped by the flames in front of one of the tenements found agass at the rear cut off by a nailed door. He hammered at it with his bare fists, tearing the skin of his hand before he broke through. Fire Marshal Brophy said his preliminary investigation indicated the fire started on the third floor of the building at 15-17 Doyer street, mushroomed and spread through a narrow airshaft and through the open windows of the adjoining building. He had no idea how many people might have been in the buildings whether any had been trapped when some of the floors collapsed. A score or more persons were rounded up and taken to the Elizabeth street station for questioning.

Neutrality Proposals Delayed in Committee

Washington—(P)—The administration's neutrality proposals today were given a definite spot in senate committee proceedings but the date selected—next Wednesday—meant another week's delay. Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) said they would be made a special order of business for the foreign relations committee June 28. His committee met today to consider the revision proposals, such as are carried in the house bill written by Representative (D-N.Y.) Roosevelt asked yesterday that congress act on the bill this session.

Woman Scholar Needs 'Wifely' Husband, A.A.U. Women Told

Denver—(P)—What a woman scholar needs is a "wifely" husband to handle her home and deal with the affairs and people who invade the time she desires to devote to intellectual effort. Prof. Helen White, Wisconsin University English teacher and novelist, made that statement to the American Association of University Women convention last night. "The thing I envy my male colleagues most is a wife. I think a professor's wife is the world's greatest institution," she said. Women fellows are afflicted by a double standard in their careers of learning, said the comely winner of a research fellowship at Huntington library, Pasadena, Calif.

"A man can be a great scholar and look like something the cat should not have dragged in—and still the world will see the light of genius in his eyes. "But a woman has to be pretty good to be recognized for intellectual achievement if she lets her petticoat hang down."

She remarked she had been able to deliver a 240,000-word novel to her publisher only by behaving for six weeks in a manner which she knew left her no friends. "You can be only moderately disagreeable and get away with it," she philosophized. "American women make things too hard for themselves by all they try to do. We have the old sense that we should be minding our neighbor's business."

Green Bay and Western Orders 3 Locomotives

Green Bay—(P)—The Green Bay and Western lines announced today orders for three new passenger freight locomotives to cost approximately $270,000 and to be delivered in October. The engines to be built by the American Locomotive company of Schenectady, N. Y. will have a tractive effort of 47,000 each, enabling them to pull 50 loaded cars over any grade between Kewaunee, Wis. and Winona, Minn., at a speed as high as 50 miles an hour. Automatic stokers will feed the fireboxes. The new power will be used principally in fast freight service between the Kewaunee car ferry docks and the road's western terminal at Winona. Complete with tender, each engine will weigh 228 tons, necessitating the strengthening of all trestles and bridges between Wisconsin Rapids and Winona and reconditioning of track.

Retail Milk Price Control Measure Advanced in House

Assembly Adopts Two Important Amendments Before Engrossing Bill

Madison—(P)—The assembly whipped into shape and advanced toward passage today its retail milk price control bill after adopting two far-reaching amendments. Engrossment came on a voice vote. The first amendment, introduced by Nicol (P) Sparta, requires the department of agriculture and markets to guarantee producers "at least 50 per cent" of the fluid retail price. The second allows farmers to sell their own milk without price regulations as long as no deliveries are made into controlled markets. Republican and Democratic legislators, among them members of the house agriculture committee, assailed the amendment as a means of killing the bill.

Rice (R) Delavan, committee chairman, charged, "all of you know we cannot put that plan into operation. If we are going to kill the bill, let's do it openly and not underhandedly." Ludvigsen (R) Hartland, declared he would be "glad" to vote for it, "but I don't think it would be in the best interest of the fluid milk market," because it would place an unfair financial burden on some dealers. Daugs Joins Attack

Joining the attack, Daugs (D) Ft. Atkinson said, "we had better start thinking of municipal distribution of milk if we pass this amendment." Nicol declared the amendment "would test the sincerity" of the house in providing a effective aid for a farmer. It was adopted 73-22.

Scientists Point Out Way For Comeback of Persons in Cut-Over Regions in North

Milwaukee—(P)—A way for the million and a half persons in the cut-over lands of the northern Great Lakes region to make an economic comeback was outlined to the American Association for the Advancement of Science here today.

These lands are 90,000 square miles, or 57,000,000 acres in northern Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota. Raphael Zon, of St. Paul, director of the Lake States Forest Experiment station, made the suggestions.

He said these lands have been considered, next to portions of the south, as the most serious problem area in the country. Deforestation, he explained, has been held the cause of most of the population's financial difficulties. Ecologists have argued that one-fourth to one-third of these people must have some kind of relief until reforestation is accomplished. That he said, would take 40 to 50 years. Meanwhile it has been proposed to move 20,000 out of the region.

WHILE CHRISTIANITY SLEPT

It looked for a time as though the voyage of the 907 hapless Jews from Germany to Cuba would make a new record for cold and heartless indifference of the world to the sufferings of humanity. But European nations finally showed sympathy and the 907, except for the voyage, are probably better off than if they landed at their first point of destination.

These passengers started out for America. But they knew that under our laws they could not presently land here. It was their purpose to come in under quota restrictions in due time. Their immediate aim, however, was to get away from the suffocating atmosphere of the Reich, from treatment, even though it be limited but to looks and words, that may be more blistering than the rod. But the world that calls itself Christian looked away in a preoccupied manner even when these refugees only asked to be temporarily placed on the Isle of Pines 40 miles off the Cuban mainland and belonging to the government at Havana.

One look at the Isle of Pines, a quick perusal of its history and the uncharitable act of thumbs down on that request becomes almost one with a similar motion when the Forum stood and Christian supplicants knelt on bloody sands while the populace gloated over their miseries.

For the Isle of Pines contains 480 square miles, the size of an average Wisconsin county, and yet there dwells upon it only about 4,000 people. It has a healthful climate, fertile soil, and its acres will support thousands but its principal use throughout the centuries has been a fraud in that it is sold over and over again to the American gullible who buy without investigation and then learn that it has no practical harbor and for that reason must be passed by until land is harder to find in the Western Hemisphere than it is today.

It was not a very warmhearted Western World that turned its back upon that ship-load of disaster. It was not a very Christian act to let the life lines lie all coiled up while no willing arm in the entire Western Hemisphere volunteered to toss them out to those in distress. Christianity acted in harsh manner according to approved Wotan methods and certainly in a way to win the hearty approval of little Goebbels himself.

SIZING UP SENATOR BOLENS

Mr. Keller included Senator Bolens in his sweeping statement against "reactionaries" in the Democratic party.

Only last October when Mr. Bolens was running for governor no less an authority than former Senator Duffy spoke of him as "a great liberal." From Mr. Duffy's statement it would not have been surprising had Mr. Bolens been promoted to a cabinet position at Washington.

Just for the time being we don't care whether Mr. Bolens is a liberal, a reactionary, a negro or a Hottentot although we have a very pronounced opinion upon his classification in politics.

But he is giving the state an example in political courage and in outstanding opinion that has every earmark of sincerity and honesty, whether correct or not, and that is as welcome as a cooling rain when the thermometer has climbed towards 100.

After all, isn't an upstanding, straight shooting critic worth more to the state than one of those clammy-handed friends who is always reaching for the shoulder to pat it?

MR. ROHAN CROSS-EXAMINES

Mr. Rohan wants to know of the Department of Agriculture just why a farmer in Manitowish county may sell his milk at the farm at such price as suits him while Mr. Rohan's farm in Outagamie county is "in a prison zone" and carries no such blessed privilege. The doughty dairyman from Outagamie adds the additional inquiry whether he may be permitted to move his twenty cows into a zone of liberty or whether an injunction may stop him.

The questions may appear impudent to some but they are mighty material to the sleep-bang and who-gives-a-damn method that has prevailed in respect to making our laws, and with a particular vengeance as regards agriculture.

Mr. Rohan's questions may make people think. And certainly very few have been thinking or we wouldn't be where we are. His ability to write in pictureesque language adds tints to the picture and enlivens the scene.

Our government has made errors before and will again. There is nothing so terrible in a mistake that is unintentional. But blunders of the huge size that have appeared in farm legislation, and particularly to the detriment of the dairyman, are cause for wonderment. They suggest the question whether they were wanton or just thick and stolid.

CRITICAL DAYS FOR DEMOCRACY

"War is the most terrible enemy that democracy knows," said Senator Nye at the Hortonville homecoming. And then the Dakota statesman prophesied that if we become involved in another great struggle for supremacy by arms "our democracy will be gone, dead and buried." The senator is not posing as a prophet anointed or otherwise. He is merely reading to the people a very true page of history.

We had a great America here, a wonderful land, buzzing with activity, where the beaming countenances of the people glowed their happiness as they worked and built and designed and constructed. That was prior to our first experience in high idealism. Since then we have taken such course as a nigger-chaser. We zoom to the clouds and plunge to the depths. We have more gold than the rest of the world put together and more industrial misery.

And we are in the midst, it may be said, of another experiment in that high idealism. It was undertaken, sad to say, just as we were recovering from the racking fever of the other attempt.

But we agree with Mr. Nye, and heartily, there is one good way for America to keep out of war and that is to mind its own business. There is one excellent way for America to get into war—and that is to stretch its long nose out into the business of others.

MR. HANES IS NOT WANTED

Sometime ago Mr. Roosevelt induced John W. Hanes to become under-secretary of the Treasury. He was put at the task of working out a financial program that would at one and the same time preserve New Deal aims and permit the return of normalcy.

Mr. Hanes has now delivered to the House committee the following ultimatum:

"There are at bottom only two ways of producing wealth . . . to conscript labor and capital, and put them to work under government compulsion . . . to provide the incentive of wages, interest, dividends and profits, the way to which we are committed . . . the tax system can be improved so as to stimulate private enterprise."

Specifically Mr. Hanes proposed a stoppage of issuance of tax exempt bonds, an abandonment of the "soak the rich" income tax assessments, immediate changes in the capital stock and excess profits taxes,—and all with heavy emphasis on a precise governmental policy as respects taxes and finances instead of this vague and aloof and nebulous creation that we have which is precise only in the particulars in which it is plainly wrong.

But Mr. Hanes no longer receives the sunlight shed by our imperial Augustus. He is no longer received with favor at the White House. He did not become intoxicated at the smiles of Tommy the Cork and the banjo playing chorus. He simply told the truth, a truth quite plain to anyone familiar at all with the subjects and who was not attempting to walk in his sleep.

SHADOW OF THINGS TO COME

The Temporary National Economic Committee has distributed treatises to correspondents to guide them in the delicate work of writing about the New Deal. So much lies in the use of the right word.

The suggestion is made that "government running expenses" be substituted for that naughty word "spending." Softly and gingerly must writers handle such pleasing words as "sales" and "wages," and heavy stress must be laid upon the lead furnished by the President when he spoke of our sometimes called "wastage" as an "investment."

All of which suggests that seven year or seventeen year locusts can never blacken the skies the way the charmers of the people expect to blarney them on the great bid for a third term next year. Black will be white, or at the worst, gray. Poverty will be wealth. Rags will be costly raiment.

And the nation will be bedlam.

A Verse for Today

THE SKIPPER

The Skipper has a blue serge cap
Encreased with gold braid.
A rakish peak shades his pink cheek.
He wears it unafraid.
For any tides that rise and fall:
For it is strange to note.
Although his cap is nautical.
The Skipper has no boat!

The Skipper has a navy coat.
Upon the sleeve a stripe;
An emblem sewn upon his own
Blue garment is the type
Belonging to a sailorman . . .
But let it blow a gale!
The Skipper makes no change of plan
Because he does not sail!

The Skipper's boat is Mother's arm!
He sails upon the deep;
A rocking chair, the sailboat where
He drifts away to sleep!
And is a personality.
And in him we behold
The Skipper of our destiny
Though he's just ten months old!

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

New York—The Bearded Lady is in Love. There appeared in a newspaper the other day this advertisement: "Dear Frank: Don't do anything rash until you hear from me. You failed to give your address, Frances." This is what is known as a "Personal" advertisement, and my name isn't Frank; but I am a busybody. I began to snoop around; and it was thus I came upon the Bearded Lady's love story.

Frances of the advertisement is Miss Frances Murphy, better known to visitors to a World's Fair exhibit as the Gorilla Girl. Frank is a nice young man who lives in Michigan, and who is violently in love with Miss Murphy, whiskers and all. He has been asking her for six years to become his wife—ever since her first husband died, as a matter of fact. Frances has been consistently evasive. It isn't that she doesn't love Frank. It is that she remembers the embarrassing existence her first husband led because of her unusual facial adornment. She does not want Frank to suffer in like manner.

Frank, however, wants to marry her. His 1939 proposal letter was couched in terms of desperation. He implied that if she spurned him this time he would do away with himself. His strong language stirred Miss Murphy, and I suspect she might have lowered her lashes, fingered her beard and said "Yes, Frank," except that Frank made a slight error. He forgot to say where he was.

His letter was postmarked from a Connecticut city, so the Gorilla Girl inserted the Personal advertisement in the paper there. "Don't do anything rash," she urged.

I don't know how it's going to turn out. Rather interesting, though, don't you think? Maybe Frank has already gone and done it, in which case it is very sad. Maybe he is still alive, a surmise much more plausible. He may even read here that the Bearded Lady is now amenable to his amorous avowals, and he may fly to her side. I hope so. Love is a wonderful thing, especially on paper, and I love to write about it. "Columnist Cupid Unites Bearded Lady and Swain" would make a cute headline, especially if the sub-head said something about its being a close shave—a pun which I fear few head-writers could resist.

Miss Murphy tells me she was a founding discoverer by Franciscan monks in a Madagascan settlement. The name Murphy was given her by Father Patrick Murphy who brought her to the United States. She was privately tutored and attended the Schuster-Martin school in Cincinnati, the head of which is Tyrone Power's aunt, if that makes any difference. She is 29 now and has had a beard ever since she can remember. It is about three inches long bushy, curly and red. She talks in a soft, mellow voice. She doesn't mind being billed as the Gorilla Girl, because she knows how screwy show business is. She was startled the other night, however, when one of the speliars changed his introduction. It happened that Orson Welles was attending the show. The speliar recognized him, and when he came to Frances stage Welles was surprised to hear the speliar say: "And now we present Miss Frances Murphy—the Lady from Mars!"

The smallest "policeman" in New York is Roy Holgate, a mere 3 feet, 11 inches tall, who has been preserving order, in a manner of speaking, in the Manhattan Room of the Hotel New Yorker for four years. He wanders about among the customers very officiously, and sometimes people actually believe he is an Arm of the Law. The little fellow is 44 years old and the father of a 20 year-old daughter of normal size.

"Thief chief" is that man like to bop him on top of the head, playfully. "It makes me sore," says Officer Holgate, "I go downstairs and smoke a cigarette, and then I feel all right again."

Maybe that's why he never grew up—smoking.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, June 19, 1929

Colonel Jaul V. McNutt, commander of the national department of the American Legion, was to arrive in Appleton at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon by airplane. He was to deliver a talk at Lawrence Memorial chapel in the evening.

A fresh air school for Appleton and a health committee was appointed to work on the project at a luncheon meeting of the Appleton Woman's club the previous day.

The deed to Kimberly Point park, a tract of land on the lakeshore, presented by Mrs. Helen K. Stuart, was accepted by the Neenah council the previous evening. The deed stated the land should be used solely for park purposes.

Augie Brandt's Ford was going over to Kimberly Sunday afternoon determined to break Squaw Potan's record of pitching 49 consecutive scoreless innings. Dots Crowe was the last batter to get run off the star twirler. He hit the ball out over the railway tracks in a previous game that season against Kimberly.

25 YEARS AGO
Wednesday, June 24, 1914
A conservative estimate of $100,000 was made of the loss resulting from the miniature cyclone which broke early that morning in the vicinity of Appleton. A number of houses were wrecked, many barns blown down, telephone wires formed networks across roads and tents of a carnival showing near the city were torn and flattened.

The storm appeared to have followed a peculiar course. It came north from Fond du Lac and turned east in the vicinity of Medina, sweeping buildings before it in a path that was about half-mile wide. The storm skirted Appleton, hit Little Chute and Kaukauna, and turned north where damage was reported as far as Escanaba, Mich.

UNIONISM SUFFERS
The appalling brutality of the assault on patrons of a beer tavern last week by men wearing insignia of the Briggs CIO local continues to oppress us.

Instances of beastliness on the part of individuals are common enough in the news. So is hot-headed violence. But for 14 presumably normal men to equip themselves with chains and clubs with the coldly premeditated purpose of beating unoffending people totally unknown to them is conduct we simply can not understand. There is a nightmarish quality about it too reminiscent of stories of cold fiendishness that come to us nowadays from certain quarters of Europe.

Briggs local officials continue to deny, as well they might, that the men involved actually were members of their union. They hint that the assault may have been done by a rival faction bent on discrediting the CIO union. It is an explanation rendered somewhat implausible by the fact that the leader of the gang was a CIO unionist in good standing.

But, be that as it may, the effect of such an incident on the public is to discredit unionism in general. It lends new substance to the public's impression, fostered by the sit-down strikes, that a union touch holds himself above the law, for all the world like a Nazi trooper.

It is hoped the police will be able to catch up with the beer tavern assailants and that the law thereupon will demonstrate it is still in effect.—Detroit News.

A Bystander
In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The good neighbor countries to the south are showing an increasing disposition to take a larger share in the profits from foreign exploitation of their natural resources, as Chile's current deal with oil companies indicates.

The process Chile adopted was somewhere between outright expropriation and a forced sale. Mexico went the hard way with outright expropriation of oil and land properties. Her rather limited success with the plan may have discouraged outright expropriation by some of the other countries.

Bolivia seized Standard Oil's holdings in that country after some ill-natured bickering between the government and the courts. Costa Rica has pending a piece of legislation authorizing seizure of power properties of Electric Bond and Share, but that has been quietly forgotten for a year or more.

All the southern countries need money (and who doesn't?) That has led them to look inquiringly into a larger participation in the returns of the big foreign companies operating within their borders. Incidentally, there is written into the constitution of every last one of them a provision authorizing them to seize private property, including that of foreigners. Each constitution also carries an emphatic statement that such seizures must be paid for, but not necessarily in cash. Mexico hasn't paid for her seizures yet, either in cash or bonds, although she doubtless will when an agreement on price is reached.

In Chile no oil fields are involved, just a distribution system of service stations. The companies, of which Standard Oil was one, were willing enough to turn the business over to the government and set a price at $9,000,000 for the whole works.

"Too much," said Chile. So Chile made a counter offer. She had the right to seize the property and dicker afterward, but didn't. At the present moment the companies and the government are about to agree on something between $2,000,000 and $2,500,000. When a price is agreed upon, Chile will "expropriate."

To observers here it appears a fairly orderly process. Chile is hard pressed for money, perhaps more than any other South American nation. The earthquake several months ago cost heavily. The government expects to make a little money out of the oil distribution monopoly—enough to pay off the oil companies and help rebuild the country.

The negro messenger for George Summerlin, State Department protocol (how to greet the queen) officer, had a close up view of their majesties that made him the envy of fellow passengers in the department.

Summerlin knew the messenger had a heavy desire for a view of the proceedings, so as his car left for the station he told the messenger to "get in and stay close to the chauffeur." The chauffeur had a station right near the big show of the day, the presentation in Union Station, and Summerlin's messenger was right at his elbow.

"The Lord sure gave me great things to see today."

And did you know that foreign correspondents in this city read American newspapers to learn what is going on abroad? It is a fact. They don't trust the colored picture they get in their home papers.

WYNGAARD
The man who bosses the federal farm program came with a brief case well packed with graphs, figures and monographs. He was better prepared on farming than he was on politics, for he stumbled several times on questions concerning the latter.

Although the Roosevelt farm chief didn't talk much agriculture in his formal meetings with politicians, a couple of reporters asked him some pointed questions during a short press conference.

The Wisconsin farmers figure that Wallace and the New Deal have subsidized the south to compete for the dairy farmer's milk check by promoting the reduction of acres of cotton by putting them to grass, one reporter told him rather bluntly.

But the secretary didn't hesitate. In 1934, he reported, the south had 1,558,000 dairy heifers. Today it has only 1,439,000.

Further, cottonseed oil is a more dangerous competitor for Wisconsin dairymen than any improvement in home dairymen in the south, he maintained. And cotton oil production has been curtailed along with cotton by the New Deal.

Wallace pointed out, however, that the efficiency of dairymen operations in the south has increased, that production per cow is increasing, and conceded that the New Deal's farm program has had something to do with it.

"The South has been improving the quality of its dairy cattle faster than the north, because there has been greater room for improvement," Doubtless, too, the purebred cattle breeder in Wisconsin has this respect, he added, by sending purebred stock to them. This Wallace characterized as "a fine Christian attitude toward brother farmers."

CAPITOL DOME

Madison—Those Wisconsin farmers and farm leaders who have been criticizing the New Deal's farm policy for its effect on dairymen and those local satellites of the New Deal who have been answering the criticism, will have found much meat in Secretary Wallace's remarks during his visit to Wisconsin a few days ago.

The man who bosses the federal farm program came with a brief case well packed with graphs, figures and monographs. He was better prepared on farming than he was on politics, for he stumbled several times on questions concerning the latter.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

PINWORMS AT SCHOOL

A zoologist and a nematologist, or specialist on a class of worms which includes Ascaris (round worm), Oxyuris (pinworm), Trichina and Filaria (Guinea worm), carefully examined groups of children in private nursery schools in Washington, D. C., and reported the prevalence of pinworm infestation among these children of well-to-do families in Public Health Reports last April.

Of 106 children examined in 1937 and 1938 58 were found harboring pinworms. Most of these children were from two to five years old. Of the children from two to three years old, 43 per cent had pinworms; of the children from four to five years old 63 had pinworms.

Where a consistent effort was made in such a school to keep the pinworm-infested children from contact with the others, it seemed that the children were much less likely to become infested.

In addition to the children, 34 persons associated with them as teachers, nurses and the like, were examined, and 8 of these persons were found harboring pinworms. Three of these persons were mothers of infested children; one was an older brother; one was a maid in the home of pupils who were infested.

The ubiquitous pinworm is medically known as Oxyuris vermicularis or Enterobius vermicularis—the latter a recent change, and incidentally medical "science" is making itself ridiculous with the annual changes in style or fancy in naming things. More familiar names for pinworms are seat worm and thread worm.

Thread worm describes Oxyuris well. The worm resembles a bit of common white thread one-third of an inch or less in length. Their eggs, visible only with microscope, are readily carried to the nose or mouth by unclean fingers; or may contaminate the ground, floor or sand-pile where an infested child plays and be conveyed thence to other children; or may be carried by flies and be deposited on fruit, vegetables or other food. The eggs hatch in several days in the alimentary tract.

Occasionally large numbers of thread worms are found in the inflamed appendix at operation. Whether the invasion of the lumen of the appendix by the worms is a contributing cause of the inflammation or merely an incidental result of appendicitis is debatable. I favor the latter view.

Presence of thread worms may cause considerable discomfort in the way of itching and irritation. Rarely does it cause more serious trouble.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Vision
One of the press bureaus had a story recently telling how eye specialists had found that eye strain was greatly relieved and vision and general health much improved by taking three carotene capsules a day. Will you please give your opinion of this. (S. H. T.)

Answer — Carotene (it is not one substance, but perhaps at least three) is merely pro-vitamin A. That is, it must be metabolized (broken down) in the body to become vitamin A.

There is no nation begin to envy that relative advantage. He cited the Iowa coin-bag farmers as an example. If they decide to quit raising hogs and buy cows, he advised, the Wisconsin farmers will be able to do some first rate worrying and complaining.

Trane Pin
Swallowed a prune seed, pit or pip four days ago. Have been eating everything dry since, but so far I know have not passed it. Is there any danger? (D. K.)

Answer—No. The pit probably left the body within 48 hours. Instead of eating dry stuff, avoid laxatives, eat plenty of potato, banana, greens and fresh vegetables (for a young child these may be chopped finely together) for two or three days following the swallowing of a foreign body. But it is all right to take some water, milk or tea.

Congress Changes Attitude Toward Taxes--Lawrence

That House Bill Will be Adopted by Senate Is Foregone Conclusion.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Public opinion has forced a tax revision at this session of congress which political maneuvering might have defeated. Although the changes in the tax laws just voted in the house of representatives are by no means as far-reaching as they should be, they are of a substantial nature and represent a decided step forward in the attitude of congress toward taxation.

It is a foregone conclusion that the senate will adopt the house bill, though there may be a few changes. The whole problem seems to have been brought to a happy solution notwithstanding several weeks of jockeying between Capitol Hill and the White House. Nobody will ever know—and it doesn't seem important except academically—whether the president really wanted to have any tax revision at this session or at the January, 1940, session. Certainly, there was a drift toward complete inaction until Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, chairman of the senate finance committee, took an aggressive position and insisted on action at this time.

Perhaps, too, the demand for tax changes was more extensive than the administration was willing to concede, and, until some of the drastic demands were withdrawn, there could be no compromise.

Helpful to Business

Whatever, on the other hand, impelled action this month, there can be no doubt that the press, by its reiterated references to the tax situation, created in congress a favorable atmosphere to the amendment of existing tax laws. Many of the changes are particularly helpful to business without at the same time causing any loss in revenue. Thus, when a reorganization of a corporation is in prospect and the tax laws become a barrier, the rehabilitation just doesn't materialize, and the government loses the tax revenue while the country loses the benefit of the economic readjustment which reorganizations usually mean.

The house bill introduces a sensible change in that corporate reorganizations do not face taxes on imaginary profits derived from the buying in of their own securities that once sold at par but are "way down" in market price. The grant also to corporations not necessarily in process of legal reorganization of the privilege of buying in their own notes or bonds for a 3-year period following a private showing for the treasury of unsound financial condition is a help of incalculable importance to industry and especially to employment generally.

Many a business goes under now days and workers are thrown out of employment because there is no way to meet the tax laws which levy heavy taxes on the reduction of debt through settlements with outstanding noteholders.

Aware of Causes

The best thing about the house bill is that it reveals congress as aware that the complaint against the tax laws proceeds from other impulses than a mere desire to avoid the payment of taxes. Most business men do not object to paying taxes if they have an opportunity to gain them. Some of the provisions of existing law actually deter business from earning money by handicapping certain concerns as against others. Once congress is ready to consider taxation from the basis of stimulating economic recovery, instead of from the standpoint of reform theories which are so often flung before it, encouragement can be derived that further changes in the same direction may be made.

The comments by the president himself about broadening the tax base are significant. This does not mean, however, that Mr. Roosevelt will recommend that persons of relatively small income will ever pay direct taxes, but merely that, unless the lower income are tapped, there can be no more revenue of any substantial amounts. SENATOR VISITS AUNT AT HORTONVILLE

Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota is shown above with his aunt, Mrs. Alice Nye of Hortonville, during the senator's visit to his birthplace Sunday. He was the speaker at the seventh annual Hortonville homecoming. Mrs. Nye lives in a home next to the one in which the senator, who once edited a newspaper in Hortonville, was born. Nye Talks at World's Fair on Saturday, Hortonville Sunday

Hortonville—"Supper in New York and breakfast the next morning in Hortonville with Aunt Alice"—that was Senator Gerald P. Nye's way of exclaiming at the way transportation has speeded up since he, as a young man, edited Hortonville's newspapers.

The senator, who was the principal speaker at the homecoming here Sunday afternoon, really tried out the nation's transportation facilities in returning to his birthplace.

Read his itinerary and you'll agree: Left Washington, D. C., at noon Saturday for New York, where he spoke at the World's Fair Icelandic day. He was chosen because his state, North Dakota, has more natives of Iceland living within its boundaries than any other.

Left New York by plane at 8:15 Saturday night, reaching Chicago at 12:30. An hour later, hopped a train which reached Appleton at 7:35 in the morning. Walked into the home of "Aunt Alice" (Mrs. Alice Nye) at Hortonville soon after 8 o'clock. Spoke at Hortonville Homecoming that afternoon, was back in Washington, D. C., at 5:15 Monday morning.

The senator pointed out that he had flown from New York to Chicago in about the same time he needed to drive a horse and buggy from Hortonville to Appleton in the days when he was a youthful country editor.

In his speech, he said that the speeding up of our transportation and of many aspects of our life has caused problems that are disquieting and perplexing.

The breakfast at his aunt's home Sunday morning was the occasion for a reunion. The breakfast was held in a house next door to the one in which the senator was born.

Guests at the breakfast besides Aunt Alice and the senator were the latter's brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clair L. Nye and son Irwin and daughter, Maribeth of Janesville; the senator's step-mother, Mrs. Annie C. Nye of Oshkosh; Dr. and Mrs. Leonard Crane and Harold Crane of Manawa; Mr. and Mrs. Nye Schwabe, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Steidl, and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Smith, Menasha; Mr. and Mrs. Milton A. Ullerich and son Robert and daughter Jean, and Miss Marilyn Monroe, New London; Mrs. Clara Henderson Ambrose, Stone Lake; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schwabe, Mrs. Carrie Prentice and Miss Vera McNutt of Hortonville.

Barney Will Manage Wisconsin Foundation

Madison — (V)—The appointment of L. D. Barney as business manager of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, effective July 1, was announced by the foundation today.

Dr. Harry L. Russell, former dean of the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture, will continue as director, but he will relinquish active management and seek to coordinate the foundation's work.

The best example of the way the tax base can be broadened and injury done to the economic structure is the social security pay roll tax. Here is a tax which is levied on the broadest possible base. Never before in our history have so many persons paid taxes to the federal treasury. The result has been a business recession, beginning in 1937, from which the country has not yet recovered.

The way to get more revenue is to equalize the tax rates so that business will be stimulated and so that corporation taxes and individual taxes on incomes above $10,000 a year can bring in a bigger revenue than is now possible by restrictive taxation. Governments, like businesses, can often get a larger volume of returns by reducing the price, or, in this case, the tax rate.

6 Series of Free Acts Scheduled at Park Celebration

There will be no parking within Pierce park, Jace officials said, but ample space will be available at Lutz park and on other city property. All parking will be free and a special police detail will help motorists.

Former Regulars of Army are Eligible To Enter Reserves

Former members of the United States reserves who are interested in joining the regular army reserves may apply at the office of Major A. M. Mixson, Room 212, post office building.

Major Mixson said today that unmarried men under 35 who once were members of the army are eligible for entrance into the regular reserves. Each man will be paid $24 a year and required to report his address quarterly.

The United States is aiming at increasing the regular army reserves to 75,000. There were 25,000 members at the last report, Major Mixson said.

He urged former army regulars to see a film that has this type of recruiting as its subject and which is showing in Appleton theaters.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Hot weather seems to intensify perfume fragrances and sometimes the perfumes we adore during cooler months, are too heavy to wear during summer months—so we resort to lovely colognes to give the necessary final touch to our grooming.

This being the trend, most all leading perfumers have introduced colognes which match the fragrances of their leading perfumes. Thus you may still wear your favorite aura, but it will be lighter and far more appropriate for a torrid day.

Colognes, naturally, are less expensive than their sister perfumes, as they contain less of the costly essences which must go into perfume brews. This makes it possible for us to flaunt exquisite and expensive fragrances which we might not otherwise be able to afford!

Many good colognes come in two strengths, and if you like a lot of scent about you, you will want the heavier.

Just rearing its "cupping head" on your cosmetic counter, is a new spiky aromatic which is like a cooling breeze laced with blossom fragrance. It is delicate, refreshing, remote—but with a deep allure. A pleasing echo of its perfume companion, which a leading American designer put into the eager hands of chic women. Their enthusiasm over the perfume inspired the cologne. "A" is the lighter strength, "B" the heavier.

Spread Your Charm
There is no denying that summer cologne used as it should be used, can spread a charm over those you are with! Lifting floral fragrances, or spicy fresh odors, seem to be the favorite this season. In my opinion it is nice to select two good colognes—one which brightens up your day, and one which gives you allure at night. Identify yourself with these two fragrances the summer long. Men like women to be loyal to one or two perfumes or colognes each season, instead of wearing every new brew which appears! The simple, sweet dears (as most of them are) like familiar fragrances just as they like their old hats.

Use Cologne Lavishly
Because cologne is a lighter fragrance, you must use it more lavishly than perfume to create the effect you desire. Of course it is best as the finishing touch to a leisurely brushing, splashed all over your fresh clean skin. Not just around your ears (as some women apply perfume), but all over you. Give yourself a brisk cologne patting. Then the lovely fragrance remains with you a long time, and spreads itself more evenly.

Literally you walk in a lovely perfume.

You may, of course, spray it on your lingerie and on your gloves, but I feel it is better to keep the fragrance coming from you, rather than from the accessories you carry. In my spring and summer perfume leaflet a choice of exquisite colognes are listed. You may have it upon request if you enclose a self-addressed envelope bearing a three-cent stamp. I shall also be happy to give you the name of this lovely newcomer. Write me care of this paper.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

If you want to conduct an interesting experiment in social psychology, just try to pick out the wallflower in the crowd by means of listening to several people recite the same sentences over the telephone. You can spot the salesman, too, as well as other extroverts. Try this voice test on your friends.

CASE N-169: Mildred P., aged 23, works as a maid in an Chicago family.

"She is a very capable girl and absolutely reliable," the woman who employs her explained to me.

"But she is so excessively shy and unattractive that I feel sorry for her. She has no social life, and is even so timid she is nearly paralyzed with fright at the thought of answering the telephone."

"When she does speak, it is in a weak, nasal manner. By that, I mean she speaks through her nose, which makes her tones disagreeable.

"I have often wondered if her nasal speech wasn't a defense mechanism. It seems to me that the only way she could get up nerve enough to face a person and talk to him, was by disguising her voice through this nasal manner of speaking."

"Dr. Crane, I wish you would talk to Mildred, and see if you can't help her. I want her to become more socialized and happy."

DIAGNOSIS:
After a conference with Mildred, I found that her employer had pretty well diagnosed the case. Mildred had grown up on a farm, as an only child of foreign born parents. She had suffered from many inferiority complexes from the time she entered the first grade. Her weak voice and nasal speech were further attempts by which to hide from her public. You readers may have noticed that timid school children may speak hardly above a whisper.

Even adults are often afraid of their own voices when they get in a crowd. One of the first signs of an amateur on the stage is the fact that he speaks in such subdued tones that nobody can hear him beyond the front rows.

Even a Weak Voice Means
Every semester I have the students in my evening business psychology class arise and announce their names, hobbies and type of business in which they are employed.

Many of them have such weak voices that the students a few rows away do not catch the name at all. Here is a little test for you readers: Do you think a bookkeeper or a salesman would have the stronger, louder voice?

How about the information girl versus the young woman who sits stencils all day long? Or the popular young woman versus the wallflower? You can doubtless guess the right answers, for as a rule the salesman, the information girl and the popular young woman will have louder, firmer voices.

The men and women who are working at introverted tasks which keep them away from social contacts a great deal, are more likely to have feeble voices, because they are afraid in a crowd.

Moreover, they are not so accustomed to talking, so their own voice sounds unduly loud, though it may really be very faint.

Peculiar Protective Mannerisms
If you readers will observe your human environment closely, I am sure you will notice men who talk out of the corners of their mouths, as when they dictate letters to their stenographers.

Before they may hold their hands before their mouths, thus obliterating our sight of their lip movements, and thus reducing our ease of understanding what they say.

Some of them will mutter or talk through their noses, much as Mildred has been doing in today's case. She also had a dental inferiority complex which helped make her afraid of opening her lips.

Mildred improved markedly in her speech and personality by having her teeth cared for by a dentist, by deep breathing exercises and some speech training, plus enrolling in the COMPLIMENT CLUB. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for your application blank. It will work wonders for shy people.

Wrong Person Blamed in Set Of Five Tricks

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: In a recent team match the following hand resulted in one of the largest sets this writer has ever suffered, and the other members of the team agree that I was the culprit. I am an attorney and my stubborn nature refuses to accept the verdict, and I therefore make this appeal. Here is the hand:

"South, dealer.

South West North East
Pass Pass 1 club Pass
4 spades 2 hearts 5 spades 4 hearts
4 spades Double Pass 5 hearts
Pass Pass 5 spades Pass
Pass Double Redouble Pass
Pass Pass

"I passed originally, feeling that my hand was too weak to open the bidding vulnerable. After my partner's opening club I still made the conservative (to my mind) call of one spade (partner's third hand bid might be light), expecting to show my club support later. However, at my next opportunity I saw no reason to show this support in view of my partner's jump raise in spades, so I contracted for game in spades, with the above result. West opened a spade, and the final result was a five trick set. I took four spades and two clubs (whether or not the play was good is immaterial). As our partners set six diamonds two tricks, we could have won the board had we played six clubs.

"The other members of my team claim that my bid of four spades caused the damage. I should have bid five clubs, or doubled, rather than rebid a four card suit. My answer was that a double was out of the question against nonvulnerable opponents, and that I was justified in rebidding my spades because of my partner's jump raise; that if he had four spades, as I anticipated, our best spot was a four trick spade game and not a five trick club game, especially in a duplicate play. I was not interested in a slam, in view of my two hearts, unless my partner could invite it.

"I will appreciate your opinion in this case. You are at liberty to decide either way without fear, as my partner and I at no time went off the speaking basis over this result. "M.B.E., Pennsylvania."

Well, all I can say is just this: I might speak again to a partner who bid a hand as atrociously as North did, but I am afraid we'd go off the speaking basis if he first bid it that way and then blamed the result on me. This I imagine, is a good enough decision on my correspondent's appeal. South was extremely conservative throughout the entire course of bidding, and no part of the blame for going down five tricks could be attached to him. North's action in giving a double raise in spades, when holding only two trumps (even the ace-king) was so bad that words fail me, and his subsequent action in raising to five spades and then redoubling takes away not only my speech, but my breath. At no time did North show a rebiddable club suit and, indeed, for all poor South could know, North might have opened with a weak four card (or even three card) suit. The only criticism I have of South is that his bidding was too timid. His four spade bid might well have ended the bidding when, as a matter of fact, he should have given serious thought to a slam.

Since not only North but the other teammates as well, condemned South's four spade bid and evidently whitewashed North's bidding, I strongly recommend that the entire team (barring South) do some intensive bidding research before their next match.

Instead of trying to water the crisscross garden in the same day, or evening, concentrate on one portion, and give it a thorough soaking, at least a foot down. Next day try another part. Such a soaking should last a week, and the water will not be cold very long.

Summer Camp Relieves Child Of Home and School Routine

BY ANGELO PATRI

Going to camp is part of a child's education and training. Ten months in the year he goes to school, in comparative inactivity. The usual school is concerned only with book lessons, and the conditions that make book learning effective. That means silence, stillness, much listening, much writing, much, too much, inactivity of body, the activity that is so essential to healthy, effective growth.

Books are storehouses of ideas. Under a fine teacher they can be used to stimulate ideas and ideals, but the usual school conditions do not allow the essential step, the experiencing of the activity that realizes the ideas and approaches the ideals. Ten months of that kind of training is enough. The next two months ought to present a different environment, offer a different kind of inspiration. For that the camp in the country, by the shore, among the mountains, along the trails, seems to me just about ideal.

Children need to get away from home, and home needs to be freed of them, for a time. Any experience prolonged beyond a certain period, loses its effectiveness. Say the same thing too many times and the children cease to hear it. Feed them a certain article of diet too often and their stomachs refuse it because it no longer nourishes the body. Keep a child home too long, hold him in a set routine too long, and he becomes immune to its influences. A stay in camp relieves the routine of home and school, makes the new environment effective, and, upon return, makes the old one seem good, wholesome and altogether to-be-desired.

Taking camp for granted one must consider the kind of camp it is. What heads it? What are his ideals? What does he expect to do for the children? What are the sanitary conditions? How about the food and water? What sort of people are the counselors and what is their training? And what is the program?

A camp that continues the activities the children have known for all their lives is not the thing that is wanted. A change from the routine, a new set of experiences, fine leadership, a chance for self-development, are what's needed more than anything else.

Years ago a friend of mine opened a camp for boys. A man, famous for his riches, sent his son to that camp. Unexpectedly, and wisely, he visited camp one day. The boys had built their homes out of materials at hand, and they cooked their own meals, and served themselves. This particular day they had gone fishing for their breakfast and were cooking the catch.

Down the trail came a sun-burned lad, his bare feet and legs scratched, one sleeve torn from its moorings and riding the wind, his trousers splashed and stained, luging a pail of spring water. "Hi, you, Turkey. Don't you clean my fish. Lay off him. I caught him and I'll clean him and I'll eat him, you."

The father peered across the field at the youngster, now in the thick of kitchen mess and said, "Is that my boy?"

"It is," said the Head, thinking that now he was going to be blasted out of sight, but ready to put up a fight for his idea.

"You can have him for as long as you'll keep him. It's the first time he's ever had a chance to live."

That's what camp means many, many times—the very first chance a child ever had to really live. Give it to him if you can.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

The Home Gardener

By Edwin H. Perkins

After the Spring rush of color in the rock garden the picture remains static for a while until warm weather approaches when we begin to notice the empty spots caused by the sudden or slow death of many rock garden treasures. To fill these spots with rapid growing annuals may relieve the situation temporarily but the same picture will prevail next season. Wise gardeners do reconstruction work when this time arrives.

If the rocks were properly set when the garden was built there will be little need to change them. If the fissures between the stones were deep and if water drained into and not away from the fissures the stone work is probably correct. The soil and the nature of the plant set in it will rate some study.

The two troubles generally found boil down to improperly made rock garden soil and plants not adapted to the exposures they were given. When making replacements, scoop out as much of the old soil packed between the rocks as is possible to get out. Replace it with a soil mixture consisting of good loam, leaf mold, sharp sand and stone chips. One part of each should be used and the mixture must be nearly perfect. Fill the cavity with this mixture and tamp down well. After it is settled, set new plants in it so that only the crown protrudes from the crevice or stands above the soil line. Water well and shade until the plants take hold.

Be sure however that the plants are suited to the exposure given. Sun-loving plants should be set in front of a rock while shade loving species should be shaded for the best part of the day by the rock.

Man Won't Put Up With Wife Who Has Chip on Her Shoulder

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—A girl of 20 is soon to be married to a fine young man. She is very wilful. She is very high-tempered. She is always hunting arguments. She never appreciates anything. All her life she has had her way in virtually everything. If she wanted a car, she got it. If she wanted expensive dresses and shoes, she got them. She gets everything and anything her heart desires. At present she works in an office. When she comes home to meals she fights about things at the office. She fights, fights, fights. Her parents are heartbroken by her ways and just can't stand it any longer. Can you tell us what is wrong and how to solve our problem?

exactions very long, for it doesn't take a prophet to foresee that she will be one of the women who spend most of their time in the divorce court.

For in this day, and with this generation of men, hen's teeth are no rarer than rock and patent leather. Men are not patient with their wives' abuse and let it roll over them without their resenting it. Nor are there many men who will stand for scrappy wives. They get all the fighting they want in business, and when they come home they want peace and quiet, not to be forced into a pitched battle.

Hence their wives who always have a chip on their shoulders that they dare their husbands to knock off, the poison-tongue wives, the arguing wives and the selfish wives who never consider anybody but themselves soon find themselves deserted for more amiable ladies. And it serves them right. So far as women are concerned, nothing pays such dividends in matrimony as a sweet disposition.

But any chance of changing a girl who for twenty years has ridden roughshod over her family is simply hopeless. All of her faults of temper and temperament have been set too deeply in her character ever to be changed. They have become as much a part of the individual as his or her skin. It is only in novels that a miracle occurs in the last chapter that makes the drunkard reform and become sober, the grouch sunny and sweet-tempered, the miser generous and open-handed, the shrew so mild that butter wouldn't melt in her mouth, the selfish turn into altruists. In real life these things never happen.

The parents of this girl never taught her to control her temper; they never taught her to hold her tongue when she was angry; they never taught her to play fair or to do without the things she wanted. As a result they have made an overbearing, selfish virago, who will inevitably ruin her own life and the life of any man she may marry.

Twenty years ago her parents could have changed her, but not now. It is too late. They must reap what they have sown. In all the world I doubt if there is a worse crime than that committed by the weak parents who bring up undisciplined children to curse all with whom they come in contact.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Is there any way to keep a husband from putting his elbows on the table? I never see my husband at meals except through his hands, with his food, glass or silverware poised in the air. He isn't tired or lazy, but still can't sit at the table without leaning on his elbows. It is very unpleasant and mortifies me when we have company or are away from home. How can I break him of this habit?

RUTH.

Answer:
Well, it is hard to teach an old dog new tricks, as the old proverb says, and it is very difficult to get a man to change the habits of eating that he acquired as a youngster. If Mother allowed little Johnny to put his elbows on the table when he was 3 and make a barrage of his hands and arms through which he shoveled food into his mouth, John is mighty likely to partake of his nourishment in the same way when he is 30-odd.

It is queer that men who are highly intelligent, progressive and up-to-date in every other way, and who are quick to notice every modern improvement, seem so often to pay so little attention to table etiquette. I have seen men who had on the very latest thing in smart clothes and who had paid the greatest care to every detail of their toilets who yet ate peas with their knives and gargled their soup. They seem to think that their table manners do not matter, yet there is nothing by which they are so ruthlessly judged. And I have known more than one man who has lost the promotion he deserved and craved simply because he did not know his way among the silver.

However, I will tell you this for your comfort. Emily Post says that it is now perfectly proper to put your elbows on the table when the pauses between courses when the conversation has got so thrilling you want to lean forward and hear it. So maybe you can get your husband to wait to lean on the table until after he has refreshed himself.

Dear Miss Dix—The young man with whom I have been keeping company is very demonstrative and this embarrasses me when he tries to kiss me in public. What do you think of it? TWENTY-TWO.

Answer:
There is a time and place for all things, and public places are not the ones for love-making. It makes you look cheap and common and lacking in good taste.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

THE CHARACTERS
Jocelyn Russell, beautiful heiress.
Tally Mack, young farmer whose family has inherited half the Russell estate of Sealcliff.

Yesterday: Little Betsy takes Jocelyn's doll and bracelet to show Uncle Bob what she wants him to get her.

Chapter 22
BETSY'S APOLOGY

A half hour before supper Bob and Gretchen and Tally changed into swim-suits and splashed and swam in the warm summer surf. When the sun was half over the horizon they came out of the breakers, laughing and calling to each other.

"Race you up to the house," Bob challenged.

Jocelyn's car was in the Macks' driveway. She was waiting for them near the back door, looking smart and expensive in a suit of pale green linen, a floppy linen hat framing her vexed face, her small feet tucked into high-heeled green sandals.

"Hello, Lyn," Bob said. "I'd kiss you if I wasn't dripping."

Gretchen and Tally started on into the house.

"Just a minute, please," Jocelyn ordered. "I wish to speak to all three of you."

She held out a red hair ribbon. "Is this Betsy's?"

"Why—why, yes," Gretchen affirmed. "Where did you find it?"

"In my room. My French doll is missing—your know, Bob, the one Geoff brought me from San Francisco—and the musical powder box and my emerald bracelet. Since I found her hair ribbon on the floor beside my dressing table, I gather Betsy took the things."

Bob looked at his wife, who appeared completely astounded. "I'm very sorry, Lyn," he said. "I'll get the things, of course, and return them to you."

Jocelyn had meant to be reasonable about the whole affair, but Tally's eyes were so scornful that she heard herself blurt out:

"It isn't that the items are valuable, Bob. But the child certainly should know better than to steal. You must punish her severely so it won't happen again."

Gretchen pushed the damp black hair off of her cheeks. "I will not punish her, Miss Russell," she declared. "I don't blame her one bit. We've always been too poor to buy her fancy dolls and other toys. The ones we gave her were cheap and shoddy. She never saw beautiful, expensive things before. She's not a thief and she knows better, but she wanted them so badly she took them anyhow, knowing she couldn't keep them and knowing she would be punished. Don't you realize she's still a baby? Only five years old? I have taught her not to take things that aren't hers... but even grown people sometimes forget if they are tempted enough. I'll get the things for you and I'll talk to her about it, but I refuse to spank her or let anyone else."

Gretchen hurried into the house, Tally following. Bob looked at his sister's perturbed face.

"I'm so ashamed of you, Lyn," he said, then turned his back and slammed into the kitchen.

"Unfair!" Betsy's misdeed cast a pall over the usually gay dinner table in the Macks' kitchen. Betsy herself was not present, having been confined to her room by her mother, who had talked to the flushed, defiant child until she burst into tears.

"I couldn't get a word out of her," Gretchen said miserably. "I don't know what to do. I wouldn't have had this happen for anything. Whatever possessed her, anyhow?"

"Jocelyn needn't have made such a fuss," Bob asserted.

"Would you like me to handle it?" Tally asked, realizing that both Bob and Gretchen were too distraught to be reasonable.

The young couple nodded. "Tally's all the goat," Gramp commented. "Don't you go startin' a one to the other and not taken to each place by a maid?"

Answer: The host should ask the lady who is seated in the place of honor on his right: "Do you like light or dark meat or rare or well done slices?" He then hands this first plate to her. Or, if no choice is involved, he simply prepares the first plate without direction, puts it down in front of her and says, "This is for you, Mrs. Jones." He does the same with the lady of second importance (who should be sitting on his left). If he carries according to each person's direction he should ask the women at the table (his wife last), and then the men. If he names the person for whom each plate is intended, there ought not to be any difficulty in making each keep it instead of handing it on to you.

Another Courtesy To One's Guests
Dear Mrs. Post: In our community it is customary for people to stop in at a church, uninvited, to watch a wedding. This is a small town and naturally everyone has some interest in everyone else even though they may be no more than speaking acquaintances. Usually the people who have the most right to the best seats come last and find the worst seats left for them. I would like the situation to be different at my wedding if I can institute a change without seeming rude. Can I do something and how would I do this?

Answer: You simply put up one white ribbon barrier back of the few front pews reserved for your nearest relatives, and then put a second block of pews which are for your particular friends. Back of these two ribboned sections, people would be seated according to early arrival — without discriminating between the invited and the not invited as is customary in your community.

Aldermen Defer Action on Buying New Car for Nurse

Committee Fails to Reach Decision After Study Of Four Bids

Kaukauna — Bids on a new car for the city nurse were "placed on file for further consideration," by the common council last night. After a recess to consider the bids the public health and education committee could reach no decision, as three bids offered a trade in allowance on the present car and the fourth did not. The advertisement made no mention of trading the vehicle now in use.

Gustman Chevrolet Sales company offered a Chevrolet for $573; D and I Motor Sales, a Ford for $687; Kaukauna Motor Car company, a Plymouth for $719, and Gurnee Motor company, a Plymouth for $713. The first company gave no price on a trade in, while the other bidders, taking the car, gave net prices of $516, $590, and $580.85, in the order above.

The board of public works reported that Woodrow Diehl was having difficulties in collecting garbage. Some residents are taking their garbage to city dumps and others have other means of disposal. No rubbish with garbage in it will be picked up from now on, with the problem referred to the public health and education committee. Work relief projects are to be placed under the board, with the chairmen to place the men. Relief labor will be used to scrape and repave the Wisconsin avenue bridge.

Asks About Walk

Alderman Mertes asked what had become of the petition, referred to the board June 6, to build a sidewalk in Riverside park. Alderman Seggelink replied that this could not be included in the present sidewalk project, and Mertes asked that the board include it in the next project. Mayor Nelson said he favored the fixing up of the park's entrance, and also wished to go on record as advocating two city swimming pools, possibly one in Riverside park, and one on the south side. Nelson complimented the Veterans of Foreign Wars on the water regatta Saturday and Sunday.

Seggelink presented a bill for $22.50 for the expenses of John Haid, assistant chief of police, to the convention at LaCrosse in June. Payment of such bills was customary, Seggelink said, but it was pretty near time to stop doing it, he added. Aldermen Kinder said such bills had been paid in the past and should be paid now, adding that the Kaukauna branch of the Police-men's Protective association was doing fine work by means of its safety meetings here and in Little Chute and Kimberly, and through school patrol organizations. Alderman Mertes supported Seggelink, with Aldermen Otto Ludtke and Oscar Alger suggesting this bill be paid and future expenses disallowed unless specifically authorized by the council. The council approved this course.

A resolution was approved authorizing the transfer to the Green Bay and Mississippi Canal company of all title and rights to the 32 per cent water right, in exchange for which the city received 100 per cent of the flow below the Badger power plant.

Approve Reservoir Plan

A letter from the Kaukauna Central Labor Union thanked the city for the use of the council rooms during the body's organization, and pledged its willingness to serve the city. Mayor Nelson suggested the union go on record approving the Lily reservoir plan. Alderman Seggelink said his reports from Madison indicated the plan was not faring so well, and his motion that the city formally go on record approving the plan, with such notification to be sent to senate and assembly.

Softball Leagues in Three Divisions Begin Season Play

Kaukauna — Midget, intermediate and junior softball leagues got under way this week with initial contests yesterday, according to Clifford H. Kemp, recreational supervisor.

In the midget division the Tigers beat the Lions, 9 to 8, in 9 innings. J. Sanders and Clayton Kiffe formed the battery for the Tigers, with Bob LaPlante pitching and Bob Giordana catching for the losers. In the intermediate division Modern Shoes beat the South Side Merchants, 7 to 3, and Cubs defeated Gertz Tavern, 12 to 3. Batteries were Leo Van de Loo, Gib Knorr and M. Niesz, Shore; G. Mathis and F. Elfa, Merchants; J. Reichelt and Richard Powers, Cubs; B. Ives, J. Leddy and Jim Giordana, Gertz.

In the junior class Mike Niesz' team lost to Carl Giordana's players, 8 to 7 in 8 innings. Phelan Ferns hurled for the winners, with Steve Andrejeski behind the bat. Art Grissman and Aloys Peters pitched and caught for the winners. Because of the many players wishing to use the tennis courts several new rules are now in effect, Kemp explained. When players are waiting those on the courts are asked to limit their time to two sets, and to play doubles, giving more players a chance. Players must wear tennis shoes, with crepe soles with a heel not permissible. Kemp emphasized, as such footwear tears up the tapes. Players should keep off the courts following a rain, until the surfaces have been rolled. Boys are required to wear a shirt when playing.

Registrations for tournaments in three classes, ages 12 to 14, 15 to 17, and over 18, will be taken up to Saturday, July 1, in the mornings at the library grounds. Kemp announced. The latter division will be for the city championship, with adults eligible.

Two girls, Grace Walsh and Roselle Dougherty, are in charge of facilities at LaFollette park. Available from 9 to 11:30 in the morning and 1:30 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon are horseshoes, softball, blocks, cut-outs, can and washer game and croquet, besides the regular playground equipment. One tennis court has been set aside for supervised play by youngsters while the girls are present.

A story hour, to be held at 9:30 Tuesday and Thursday mornings and 2:30 on the same afternoons, will be begun soon at LaFollette park.

Mankosky Squad Trims Ritz Team

Coals Pile Up 20 Runs to Take Easy Victory in League Game

Kaukauna — The Mankosky Coals piled up 20 runs, the largest total of the season, in taking the measure of Ritz Tavern last night in a city league contest. The 20 to 4 win enabled the Coals to go into a tie for second place, with two wins and one loss, with the Kappell Taverns.

Art Grissman, Ed Jaackl and Gloudeum were unfortunate enough to be on the mound for the losers, giving up 17 hits, including four doubles, a triple and two home runs. In addition the trio surrendered six walks. The Ritz outfit collected only five hits off Bill Kuchelmeister, who collected his second victory of the year.

The winners counted three runs in the first, four in the third, five in the fourth and four apiece in the fifth and sixth. Four runs came in without a hit in the third, when Van Drasek, Niesz and Kuchelmeister walked, with Kiffe's roller going through the first baseman and right fielder to allow all four to score.

Kuchelmeister paced the winners at bat, scoring five runs and making four hits. Bob Van Drasek had three safeties, including a home run and triple. Steve Andrejeski tripled for the Ritz, with Art Grissman and Jaackl getting two baggers.

Tonight the Kaukauna Klubs, tied for the led with the CYO, will face the Kaukauna Machine Corporation team.

Council Agrees To Cancel $4,000 Loan to Foundry

Mayor Breaks Tie Vote on Proposal to Hold Referendum

Kaukauna — The common council last night voted "to 3 to cancel the indorsements on a note for $4,000, representing a loan to the Moloch Machine and Foundry company made in 1934. An amendment to the motion to have a referendum on the question was defeated, 6 to 5, with Mayor Lewis F. Nelson's negative ballot deciding the issue. Opposing cancellation of the note were Aldermen Oscar Alger, Otto M. Ludtke and Jule Mertes, with Al Hartzheim, Frank Femal, George Luebke, Raymond Nagel, Edward Steidl, Chris Kindler and T. L. Seggelink voting for it. Those who favored a referendum at the next spring election were Mertes, Femal, Alger, Ludtke and Kindler.

Seggelink, finance committee head, opened discussion of the note, stating the council's action would influence the city's industrial future for years to come. He quoted from the city records showing the setting up of the fund to aid industry and its approval at the polls by more than two to one.

Recalls Circumstances

"Now along comes July, 1934," Seggelink went on. "The Moloch company, having used up all its available resources appeared before the council and requested that the city come to its aid. It appears as though it was a case of the city coming to the rescue with money that the voters had previously voted for that purpose or else have the plant close down. The men would not have been able to get paid then for the labor they had performed and many of them would have been compelled out of necessity to ask the city to support them."

"The council votes $4,000 from this fund to help out this time but in return insists that not only the company give a note for this money but that the nine directors of the company endorse on the back of this note that they jointly and severally guarantee the payment of the note at maturity."

A month ago, when he first learned the council would be asked to cancel the note, he was against such action. Seggelink continued, but since then he had acquired more information on the subject. Directors who indorsed the note are still paying interest on notes floated to take care of payrolls since July of 1934, besides having made cash contributions of $53,054, Seggelink said.

"We have appropriated $1,500 to prepare a booklet advertising Kaukauna's industrial advantages," he went on. "Can you imagine an industrialist reading that the city is suing directors of a defunct company for a loan that was supplied from a fund which people had voted to help industry? It appears to me we cannot afford to try to force the repayment of this loan," Seggelink concluded.

Letter from Ray

Seggelink read a letter from M. T. Ray, secretary-treasurer of Thilmany Pulp and Paper company, in which the writer said that he and Karl E. Stansbury, company president, had reached the conclusion that sufficient reasons for the cancellation of the note existed, even although the company, through taxes, would pay a "sizeable portion" of the amount.

Harry P. McAndrews gave his opinion, as city attorney, that the council had a legal right to cancel the indorsements, and his opinion, as a citizen, that not to cancel it would be "punishing good citizens for being good citizens." The indorsers had no hope of financial return, the payroll was kept up and relief costs down, he said.

Alderman Ludtke inquired as to what power the company received free from the utility. No answer was given. Alderman Mertes said he had insisted in 1934 that the directors sign the note, and then suggested a referendum vote. Alderman Nagel supported Seggelink's viewpoint, and Alger joined with Mertes in asking for a referendum.

When the council deadlocked on this question, Mayor Nelson, a signer of the note, voted against it. "The council has had all the information on this subject and should be able to decide now," Nelson said.

The aldermen then voted to cancel the indorsements.

Last week she visited with her sister, Mrs. C. L. Negley at Crivitz, Wis.

Seventh Grade Bible Pupils Visit Synagog

TO gain a background for their study of "The Living Church," seventh grade pupils in the Community Bible school were taken to Moses Montefiore synagogue, St. Joseph's Catholic church and First Methodist church recently for tours of inspection and explanations of the three types of churches. The Bible school is now in its final week.

The children went first to Moses Montefiore synagogue where Rabbi Ralph De Koven spoke about the Jewish religion and its ceremonies. At St. Joseph's church, assistant pastor, took the group through the church and explained the symbols and meaning of the rituals of the Roman Catholic church. Dr. Harry C. Culver, pastor of First Methodist church, told the children how Methodism developed and explained the symbolism of the decorations in his church.

The theme of the worship service which opens the Bible school each morning at Trinity English Lutheran church is "Knights of Right," based on the idea of the Knights of the Round Table of "Joys of the King." The first week the Rev. D. E. Bossman, pastor of Trinity church, the Rev. Robert K. Bell, pastor of Memorial Presbyterian church, and Dr. John B. Hanna of First Congregational church spoke to the children, and on Flag day Dr. Harry C. Culver of First Methodist church was speaker. The Rev. A. Guenther of St. John's Evangelical Reformed church gave a sermon on "Keeping One's Word," and the Rev. William J. Spicer, rector of All Saints Episcopal church, told a medieval story following the Round Table theme.

This week the youngsters are learning the story of Sir Galahad, and tomorrow morning George F. Werner will give a blackboard talk. The Rev. G. H. Blum of Emmanuel Evangelical church is scheduled to speak Friday morning.

Mrs. Homer O. Pence was chairman of the social hour following the meeting of Christian Mothers society of Sacred Heart church Tuesday night at the parish hall. Bridge prizes were won by Mrs. Peter Jacobs and Mrs. Michael Jacobs, schachkopf awards by Mrs. Jake Gerrits and Mrs. Floyd McGilgan, the plumpskin prize by Mrs. Theresa Vander Linden, and court whist honors by Mrs. Joseph Laux and Mrs. August Koehler. Mrs. John Stogger and Mrs. John Kraft received special prizes. Mrs. Joseph Hoffensperger will be social chairman for the July meeting.

Twelve members of Circle 3 of First Congregational church held a picnic Tuesday afternoon at Pierce park to wind up the year's activities. Mrs. D. S. Rannels is captain of the circle which will resume meetings in September.

An ice cream and strawberry social will be given by Ladies Aid society of Trinity English Lutheran church from 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon until 9 o'clock in the Schmidt, 825 N. Richmond street.

Girl Scouts Begin 3-Week Outing Friday

SIXTY-FIVE pounds of chicken or 35 pounds of pot roast are consumed at a typical Sunday dinner by Girl Scouts at Camp Onaway, Chain O'Lakes, Waupaca, which will open its 3-week season Friday. One day's order for the camp kitchen runs something like this: 25 loaves of bread, 14 dozen sweet rolls for breakfast, 100 quarts of milk, 12 pounds of butter, 10 pounds of cabbage. If ice cream is to be the dessert, 51 gallons are ordered to satisfy the hungry girls whose appetites have been whetted by outdoor activity.

During the entire camp period the girls eat 10 cases of dry cereal.

Abundant, well-cooked and tastily served food is an important factor in the running of a camp, according to Miss Dorothy Tetron, local Girl Scout director who is directing Camp Onaway. Well balanced and varied menus are planned by the camp dietitian before the camp opens. One quart of milk per day is allotted to each child, including milk for drinking, cooking and serving on foods. Fresh fruit and vegetables are served every day, special cold storage facilities being used to keep perishable foods in good condition. Meat in some form is served at least once a day at camp.

A sample Sunday dinner menu at Camp Onaway consists of chicken fricassee with biscuits, mashed potatoes, fresh green beans, cabbage and pineapple salad, cherry pie and milk.

An active outdoor cooking program is planned for Onaway campers this season. Those who wish to cook one meal a day out-of-doors plan their menus with the dietitian as to calorie balance and quantities. They pack their own food and cook it on the trail.

Importance of Religion to Better Citizenship
As a practical proof of the divinity of Christ Father Gerard pointed to the "greatest moral, intellectual and social phenomenon that has ever existed on the face of the earth."

Historical records show that Christ's coming was expected for thousands of years, the prophecies as to the time and manner of His birth, His life and death were fulfilled to the letter. Reservation Scenic Spots And Trails are Well Marked

BY PHEBE JEWELL NICHOLS
(Mrs. Angus F. Lookaround)

Two state highways, 47 and 55 traverse Menominee Indian Reservation. Just north of Keshena, 55 breaks from 47 and goes northward about 20 miles to the boundary, and 47 goes to Neopit, cutting across a corner of the rectangle of the one-time Stockbridge land where now lies the large Voland Dairy Farm, about 28 miles to the western boundary. The scenic spots, the logging and fire trails, the Mill and Agency town interests are all well marked. Big Eddy falls, five miles north from Keshena on Highway 55 probably is the most beautiful place on this branch of the Wolf, if not on the whole Reservation. Part of its charm is due to the fact that it is so untouched by man's efforts at improvement and so deeply envied by wilderness that one can walk out on the huge rocks and sit almost within its thundering power and glory. Nearby if one wishes, he can find picnic tables, and back up the little road to enter which he had had to pay a guest fee, he will find Indian-made curios and souvenirs.

Rainbow Falls
Twelve miles from Keshena on Highway 47 are the famous Rainbow falls. At the entrance stands the log building, dwelling and store, called Peck's Trading Post. From the eighth of a mile path leads downhill to the falls the roaring of which one can hear long before there is even a glimpse of them. As the Wolf river winds downward here the falls appear to be almost breaking forth from the great forest behind them. The woodlands, dense and close to the shores, give the tumbling shouting waters added power and mystery. There are housekeeping cabins for rent, this being the only place on the reservation where cabins are available.

Of the old Indian life there is little evidence but it exists in secluded localities where the privacy the native Indian loves so much may be preserved. Far within the deep forest may be found little groups of Indians living in summer wigwams, tilling their small garden plots, holding to their ancient faith. Tribal enolltees, they share in such dividends and interest as accrue to them from the tribal funds and industry. It is the business of the agency superintendent to see that they are in no wise neglected. The old people receive a sort of old age pension which is not charity in any sense as it comes from their own tribal money. And they like all other Menominees and their families are entitled to hospitalization whenever needed because the tribe contributes a set amount annually to the mission for the running of the hospital at Keshena. They come to the tribal councils and participate in them, for the business is conducted in Menominee as well as in English. The sacred drums beat as of old. And there are old folk who remember other times and tell of them around the little night fires in the far-off settlements. This way of life in its precious seclusion permeates the thought that envelopes the reservation as surely as the smoke of its ceremonial fires flows through the piney air.

Thorn followed the old man's glance out over the vast reach of ocean and surprised himself by saying, "I guess it is treacherous at that. You sailed on it for a good many years, didn't you?"

"Yep," Gramp, bracing himself on the stair railing, sank with slow effort to the step just below Thorn's dyke. "A man does peculiar things when he loses a woman he loves. After your grandpa run away with Homer I just didn't mind much what become of me."

Pistol Practice Range Proposed For Police Use

Quarry Available for Project, Menasha Council Is Informed

Menasha — A range for pistol practice for members of the Menasha police department was proposed by Alderman Walter O'Brien as the city council disposed of a large number of routine matters at a regular session Tuesday night at the city hall.

The use of the quarry of the Quarry Products company as the site of the pistol range has been granted by C. E. Friedland, according to O'Brien. The city attorney drew up papers absolving the company from any liability in case of accidents and the aldermen instructed the attorney to do so.

Alderman William Karrow pointed out the advantage of having the target in the quarry. John R. Scanlon questioned the possibility of using the range used by the national guard in the quarry but O'Brien pointed out that the space was too small and at the quarry practice could be held on targets over 100 feet away.

Falcon Nine Will Face Challenge Of Former Greats

Old Time Players to Don Suits for Tilt Saturday Afternoon

Menasha — The Menasha Falcons will face one of their most severe tests on the diamond Saturday, and it won't be a Fox Valley league contest either. It will be a game with old time Falcon players Saturday afternoon at the Menasha stadium.

It's a matter of honor with the young Falcons. They just have to win that game Saturday or else they won't be able to show their faces around the club house. And so, even though there is a Fox Valley league game scheduled for Sunday at Little Chute, the Falcons will be gunning for a victory Saturday.

The old timers have watched the Falcons play this year and haven't been particularly impressed. The Falcons have won only two games in six starts in the league and the old timers have been muttering something about, "We'll show them how the game should be played."

Not So Old

George Kolasinski is manager of the old timers and has been plotting and planning to select the best lineup. The old timers really won't be so very old although it has been ten years or more since some of them have been playing ball regularly. Most of the old timers will not be much over 40 years of age.

The veterans are going to have a large squad available for some of the players may find that one or two innings are enough and aging muscles and bones refuse to bend without breaking.

The game is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Menasha ball park. Manager George Kolasinski will announce his squad shortly while the Falcons are expected to stick to their regular lineup.

Lutheran Church to Hold Picnic at Park

Menasha — The annual parish picnic of Trinity Lutheran church will be held Sunday afternoon and evening at the Menasha park. Plans for the picnic were discussed at a meeting of the Sunday school teachers Tuesday night at the parish hall.

Ed Berg, Irving Schuelke, and Frank Koester are in general charge of the picnic. A feature of the picnic will be the concert by the Sunday school band at the park Sunday afternoon. There will be games and contests for the children.

Wants Interview

F. M. Rosenthal of the Menasha Mill Supply company requested an interview with the council on taxes for 1935 and 1936 on lots 14, 15 and 16 in Block 55, Reeds addition, Fourth ward. The request will be invited to appear at a committee of the whole meeting.

The request of Donald G. Turner for permission to offer 14 lots on Lake road for sale without platting was referred to the city attorney. The request of the Wisconsin-Northern Michigan Assembly of God for permission to erect a tent at the old high school site to hold gospel services was refused.

The report of John Backes secretary of the Twin City Memorial day observance committee, was accepted and placed on file. The report showed assets of $213.72, expenditures of $145 for the 1932 observance.

The Twin Cities Office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and display advertising departments is located at 510 N. Commercial street, and the telephone number is 4100. Neenah Lions Fete Police for City's Record of Safety

Public Interest Is Aid to Work, Assistant Chief Says

Neenah — Viggo Sorenson, assistant police chief, sounded the keynote of the present trend in traffic safety — increased public interest — when he expressed the gratitude of the Neenah police department for the testimonial dinner and plaque presented by the Neenah Lions club Tuesday noon at the Valley Inn.

The assistant chief said, "I thank the Lions club on behalf of the department for this plaque and the dinner as well as express our gratitude for the testimonial, for it clearly indicates the increase in public opinion for traffic safety."

Police Chief C. H. Watts and more than 10 members of the department were feted at the dinner. Mayor Edwin A. Kalfahs gave a short talk, and City Clerk H. S. Zemlock also was a guest of honor. A moving picture on traffic safety, "Show Your Colors," was shown by J. P. Lynch, Chicago.

A. A. Hennig, toastmaster, presented the plaque to the department. On the 10-inch bronze plaque was inscribed, "Presented to the Neenah police department for its 1938 traffic safety record by the Neenah Lions club."

On Honor Roll

In making the presentation, Hennig pointed out that Neenah was one of nine cities of its size which was placed on the honor roll by the National Safety council for having had no traffic deaths during 1938. He also said that Neenah is the leading place in Winnebago county as far as traffic safety is concerned.

"This traffic safety record has been maintained despite heavy congestion of traffic at the intersection of Commercial street and Wisconsin avenue. There hasn't been one serious accident at that dangerous corner," he stated. "Each officer of the department has a part in the program for maintaining safety, and all they ask is the cooperation of the public."

Mayor Kalfahs expressed his pleasure for the testimonial for one of his departments. He said, "I know the department appreciates this pat on the back, for the chief and his policemen usually are subject to kicks in the pants, and they have it coming to them, I mean the pat on the back." The intentional misdirection of the mayor's sentence instilled considerable humor in the presentation proceedings among the policemen as well as the Lions and other guests.

The mayor lauded the various departments of Neenah's city government, informing the Lions that Neenah has fine schools, parks, city offices and "certainly a fine police department."

The safety film dealt with "screwdrivers," those motorists who are a constant menace to traffic safety and a plague to traffic policemen. The film indicated that while tactics employed by the "screwdrivers" may not necessarily result in fatalities, they cause injury, property damage, traffic congestion as well as added expense in the operation of automobiles and trucks.

Lynch pointed out that the film has been shown before 104 clubs and 10,000 persons. It isn't designed for children but for adults.

Merchants Will Oppose Green Bay In Valley League

Neenah Seeks 4th Straight Win to Conclude First Round

Neenah — The Neenah Merchants will complete their first round schedule in the Fox River Valley league by seeking their fourth straight victory at 2:15 Sunday afternoon when they clash with Green Bay at the Washington park diamond.

The Merchants' twin victory last Sunday boosted them into third place in the league standings, having won five games against three defeats. The Neenah nine defeated the strong Kaukauna team, 7 to 2, and Appleton, 5 to 4, in the double-header.

Neenah has an outside chance of climbing into the lead. The Merchants can take second place if they defeat Green Bay and the second place Kaukauna nine loses its next two games, and they can tie Kimberly for first place providing the Papermakers lose their next three games. Kimberly, however, has won six straight games against no defeats this season.

On the basis of their rally during the last three games, the Merchants will be favored to drop from Green Bay. The Thomas Cubs are in a tie with Manitowish for fourth place, each nine having won four games against three losses.

Either Menning or Christofferson, both of whom hurled the Merchants to victories last Sunday, will pitch for Neenah against the Green Bay aggregation. Against Appleton, Menning restricted the Becker Taverners to four hits, while his teammates connected with nine safeties off Murphy, Appleton pitcher. Kaukauna nicked Christofferson for nine safeties, while the Neenah batters hoisted out 11 hits off Schulz and Gresze, Kaukauna flinger.

Merchants Will Oppose Green Bay In Valley League

Neenah Seeks 4th Straight Win to Conclude First Round

Neenah — The Neenah Merchants will complete their first round schedule in the Fox River Valley league by seeking their fourth straight victory at 2:15 Sunday afternoon when they clash with Green Bay at the Washington park diamond.

The Merchants' twin victory last Sunday boosted them into third place in the league standings, having won five games against three defeats. The Neenah nine defeated the strong Kaukauna team, 7 to 2, and Appleton, 5 to 4, in the double-header.

Neenah has an outside chance of climbing into the lead. The Merchants can take second place if they defeat Green Bay and the second place Kaukauna nine loses its next two games, and they can tie Kimberly for first place providing the Papermakers lose their next three games. Kimberly, however, has won six straight games against no defeats this season.

On the basis of their rally during the last three games, the Merchants will be favored to drop from Green Bay. The Thomas Cubs are in a tie with Manitowish for fourth place, each nine having won four games against three losses.

Either Menning or Christofferson, both of whom hurled the Merchants to victories last Sunday, will pitch for Neenah against the Green Bay aggregation. Against Appleton, Menning restricted the Becker Taverners to four hits, while his teammates connected with nine safeties off Murphy, Appleton pitcher. Kaukauna nicked Christofferson for nine safeties, while the Neenah batters hoisted out 11 hits off Schulz and Gresze, Kaukauna flinger.

The Merchants' line-up will consist of K. Handler 2b, Cheslock cf, Fahrnkrug rf, Gullickson cf, Gartzke 3b, Gammy ss, Cash c, and W. Handler 1b.

2. Attorney General Murphy's Madison speech terming the La Follette the "best political stock in the nation."

(Visits to Wisconsin of the two cabinet officers had caused speculation here as to whether New Deal Democrats and the Progressives might be preparing a friendly get-together for 1940 when Senator La Follette comes up for reelection.)

But the president was equally reticent on this subject, saying he had read only the headlines in the Washington papers, and these he said might not accurately represent the story or speeches.

He did volunteer the information, though, that his transcontinental trip, which will give him an opportunity to gauge political sentiment in the north, south and west, would be delayed until after congress quies.

Re-elected were Arthur Huger, Madison, and Oscar Thuermer, Virgona.

Conservation Head Praises Dad, Son Fishing Week Idea

Madison—The Appleton Post-Crescent's dad and son fishing contest, in progress this week, today won the praise of Harley W. McKenzie, director of the state conservation department, which was founded to promote fishing and other outdoors recreation, and himself an ardent angler.

Recalling that the state and national movements for an official "Dad and Son Fishing Week" originated a year ago in Appleton conservation circles, McKenzie said: "This movement offers an unusual opportunity for more firmly establishing the friendly comradeship of father and son. It will serve a dual purpose in that the son will receive his sport-manship ideals from his father, and the father will, on his part, strive to be the true example of such ideals."

Fishing together by fathers and their sons will bring them closer together "in the great outdoors than can often be done in the home atmosphere," the state conservation chief observed.

McKenzie suggested that it might be a good plan sometime to extend the movement to include daughters, "since some are just as desirous to fish as boys."

The week beginning Sunday, June 18, has been officially proclaimed "Father and Son Fishing Week" by Governor Julius P. Heil, in accordance with a resolution sponsored by Assemblyman Mark Catlin, Jr., of Appleton on behalf of the Appleton chapter of the Izaak Walton league.

During that period "age and youth shall meet on the common ground of good sportsmanship and learn to speak the common language of mutual understanding that is associated with fishing," the governor's proclamation said.

Boys who wish to enter the Post-Crescent's contest may fill out the blank and file it at the Post-Crescent office Saturday, July 1. Only boys under 17 years of age living in the Appleton area are eligible to enter.

Truckers to Play Thursday Night With Manitowoc

Team Slated at Sheboygan Friday; Herb Palmer Lost to Squad

CLINTONVILLE — Thursday and Friday nights will be big ones for the Clintonville Trucker baseball team for it has games scheduled on those evenings. On Thursday evening the Manitowoc Shocks come to the Trucker field for a Northern State league encounter and on Friday night the Trucks will show at Sheboygan against the Sheboygan Chairs. Clintonville still is leading the field in the Northern State loop even after splitting two games Sunday, losing in the afternoon to Seymour and winning from Two Rivers at night. Thursday evening, when the Trucks are hosts to the Shipbuilders, it will be the second meeting of the season. The first time they met was the first game of the year for both teams and Clintonville managed to sneak through with a 6-5 win. Manitowoc was in a good position to catch the Trucks last Sunday but fell by the wayside the same as Clintonville and split two games. It lost in the morning to Two Rivers and beat New London. When the Trucks play at Sheboygan Friday night they will be playing a return engagement against the Chairs. Last year the Chairs, who are one of the topnotch teams in the Tri-State league, won over the Trucks by 5 to 3. The Trucker management will bring the Chairs to Clintonville later this season. They also are planning games with the Madison Blues, also of the Tri-State loop, and with Wausau in the Northern league. Clintonville will be handicapped for possibly the rest of the season with Herb Palmer, veteran shortstop, in the hospital as result of a spine injury incurred in a recent game. Palmer was the field captain for the Trucks and was one of the best shortstops in the league.

Coated Papers breezed through Chair Factory, 12 to 5, in a loosely-played American league tilt at Roosevelt school diamond. Bobbie Diener was given a rest and Bob Eggert took over the mound duties, turning in a creditable performance. He allowed but five hits, whiffed eight and walked four. Frank Eddon bled out for the losers and was nipped for 13 hits while striking out 2, and passing 2. The winners scored in every inning except the last three. Frank Stoffel whalloped a homer in the second with none aboard and "Paddy" Crowe smashed a circuit ball with two men on base in the third. Crowe's blow gave Coated a 7 to 2 lead and the team coasted the balance of the route. Triples were authored by Hurley and Krake while Salzman, Gusz and Leitz hit doubles. The summary:

Big Ten and Western Track Stars Will Clash This Evening

Berkeley, Calif. — A new world record for the one-mile relay may be added to the exploits of track and field here early this evening when athletes of the Big Ten and Pacific coast conferences wind up their annual meet with the four-lap event. The record for 11.3 minutes, set by the University of Southern California team in 1926 at the west coast relays. By running up to their best times for the season, the four coast conference entries, Erwin Miller and Howard Upton of Southern California, Don Watts of California and Mel Pettichord of Washington State, could compile a total clocking of 3:02.7. The middle western quartet likewise was a potential record-breaker. Three Michigan men, Warren Breidenbach, Phil Balyeat and Jack Stalder, and Jack Sulzmann of Ohio State, were capable of a 3:10.6 mile. Seasonal times and distances favored the coast conference team to win for the third successive year. The first running of the meet, 1927, saw the "masters" win, 92 to 44. Last year they rolled up a 101 to 35 decision over the squad from the mid-west.

Gehrig in New York With Medical Report

New York — (AP) — The Yankees are due to learn what's wrong with Lou Gehrig and they also may tell the public about the findings of the medicos who examined Lou at the Mayo clinic during the past week. Gehrig returned from Rochester, Minn., by airplane last night, carrying the physician's report on his condition. He said he would turn it over to Ed Barrow, the club president, today and let Barrow make any necessary arrangements. The big first baseman voluntarily ended his record consecutive game playing streak this spring when he failed to get into condition.

State League Notes

ANOTHER heavy schedule is on tap for the Northern State leaguers this week and the club leaders are praying for fair weather so that they can get in their postponed games before the "zero hour" on July 9.

Two contests are scheduled Wednesday night. New London will be at home to the Two Rivers Polar Bears while Bill Row's Seymour club is again slated to display its baseball wares against the Sox in Green Bay.

NO REASON WHY THERE AREN'T A FEW CHAMPIONS IN THESE GROUPS

Here are two pictures of classes at the Appleton Post-Crescent tennis school yesterday at the Appleton High school courts. It was the day for girls and women and more than 175 received instruction from George LaBorde and his two assistants, Joe Shields and Bill Pickett. The upper picture shows the turnout for the 130 class, the group from 10 years to 14 years of age. At the left of the picture you can see several little misses who weren't officially enrolled but they got their instruction along with the rest of the group. They live across the street from the courts and have been raucous and all kinds of enthusiasm and take a swat at any loose ball that comes their way. The lower picture is of the girls 14 years of age to 17 years. Both of the early afternoon classes were at maximum. The third wasn't so large because many women in it were working and came in the evening instead. The evening class had 55 or more women—almost too many. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Things are looking better for Two Rivers as Lucy Alberts again is taking his regular turn on the mound. The speedball artist has been on the shelf with a sore arm since pitching a victory over Seymour early in May.

Tommy Tomlin is having a great year with Clintonville. The lanky right hander pitched the 21-inning win against Two Rivers last Thursday and then came back Sunday night to again hand the Polar Bears another defeat.

More Than 175 Girls, Women Receive Instruction at the Post-Crescent Tennis School

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
GIRLS, young ladies and women—more than 175 of them—passed through the Appleton Post-Crescent tennis school yesterday afternoon and evening at the Appleton High school courts and they learned a lot of tennis, and acquired no few aching muscles and squeaky joints for today.

It was a great day and featured four interesting classes with the enrollees all asking about the next session. And while a few found the workouts rather strenuous, there were others who remained to hit a few extra balls and continue practicing.

Some of the girls were stroking a mighty fine ball and others were learning that hitting a tennis ball isn't the easiest thing in the world. But they all promised they'd practice and that they'd be back for more.

Several of the girls and women had played tennis but were most attentive as corrections were made on how to hold the racquet and how to shift weight for forehand and backhand shots. Individual attention was given every girl and woman during the day by George LaBorde, Joseph Shields and William Pickett. In some cases all three instructors had an opportunity to offer help.

And in case the students want to recall the instruction we'll mention the steps here as briefly as possible.

The Grip
For the forehand—Hold the racquet at the throat in the left hand and then "shake hands" with it. The fingers are extended slightly, the "V" from the thumb and first finger are on a line with the edge of the racquet and the shoulder.

For the backhand—Turn the hand a turn toward the back and place the thumb directly in the back of the handle.

All shots should be made away from the player; never be maneuvered into a position where you have to hit one in close. Reach for the ball and sweep the racquet against it. Try to hit on a line horizontal to the court, never at a sharp angle up or down.

Shifting the Weight
For the forehand — (Assuming that the player is facing the net, feet apart and along the base line) As the ball approaches cross over with the left leg and sweep into the ball off the left foot.

If the ball is close to the body on a forehand, step back with the right leg and hit off the left foot. For the backhand—Cross over with the right leg and hit the ball off the right foot. For a close ball, retreat with the left leg and sweep into the ball at a point opposite the right foot.

And here's a bit of advice: If you hope to play tennis, if you are taking the game seriously, you'll have to practice the grip, the shift of weight and stroking the ball every spare moment of the day. Many girls complained of the strain on the wrist. Practice will strengthen the wrist. Try to get in some practice if it's no more than batting the ball against the side of the house or garage, or just standing in the yard and shifting the weight and swinging.

Today the week's instruction was to wind up with the two boys' class, rained out Monday.

Bucky Walters Hurls Tenth Victory of Season as Reds Increase Lead in Senior Loop

CINCINNATI — (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, with a 4-2 victory Tuesday over the Brooklyn Dodgers, increased their first place margin over the St. Louis Cards to six and one-half games.

Bucky Walters was the pitching hero for the winners, gaining his tenth victory of the season with a smartly pitched eight hit job that had the Dodgers helpless after the first inning.

Freddie Fitzsimmons, opposing him, went the distance for the Dodgers, but was touched for hits which the Reds managed to bunch in the second, sixth and eighth for the victory.

The Dodgers' two runs came in the first inning when Dolph Camillo homered—it was his twelfth of the season—with Melo Almada aboard.

The Reds scored once in the second, then added a pair of runs in the sixth on Frey's double, a fielder's choice and McCormick's single and added one more in their eighth when Goodman dumped a double into left field, scoring Werber, who had walked.

Youngsters Display Tricks on Stilts in Playground Tourney

New London — Keith Geske and Junior Miles were the victors in the junior and midget divisions, respectively, in an unusual stilt contest held at the Washington High school playground Tuesday afternoon.

Three juniors and six midgets took part. A straight race, obstacle race, hop race, backward race and cock fight constituted the five events of the contest.

Geske took first in all junior events except the straight race which was won by Robert Lyon with Dick Zuege third. Zuege and Lyon finished second and third, respectively, in all other events. Robert Lyon won the midget contest by taking first in all events except the straight race in which he fell, giving first to Dale Schoenrock. Robert Lyon placed second in all midget events but the cock fight. Other midgets in the contest were Dale Dean, Hal Salter and George Kubisiak.

The boys made their own stilts last week and practiced the stunts prior to the tournament.

Right of Way Is Still Problem of Floodway Project

State Funds Available but Three Properties Delay Work

New London — The right of way over the property of three persons still delays the start of the city floodway project for which state funds have already been provided. City Attorney Giles H. Putnam reported to the city council at its regular meeting last night. Contractors are awaiting the legal technicalities before beginning work on the $4,423 project.

The council last night ordered the purchase of approximately three acres of property east of Highway 45 offered by Louis Walner for $150, clearing the entire right of way east of the highway. Negotiations are under way with E. C. Jost to secure a 5-acre piece to the west which is being held for $225. The road to a small strip has been promised by the owner, Anton Anthony Schantz of Fond du Lac. Facing condemnation proceedings are Melvin Patchen of Jamestown, N. Y., and Miss Anna Rasmussen.

THE LAST DAYS OF DOCTOR MORGAN

Movie Land Its People and Products

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — That movie-struck girl in our neighborhood heaved a mighty sigh yesterday evening and said, with envy throbbing in her voice, "Gee, wouldn't it be wonderful to be a glamorous screen star — and have loads of handsome men at your feet? I thought of some of the very glamorous ladies I've known, of the things they've said on just that subject — and had to admit that I didn't think I would be wonderful at all."

Consider the case of Sonja Henie, for instance. She has glamour to spare, enough fame to fill three or four stars — and a much-publicized income big enough to make an Indian rajah gnash his diamond-filled teeth. Nine out of ten eligible young men in Hollywood, every one of them handsome enough to meet the approval of our movie-struck girl, would give their right arms for a chance to be her "boy-friend." But I don't think Sonja is very happy about it. She happens to be afflicted — like most ladies who climb very high on the ladder of success — with a logical mind. And how can she avoid asking herself this question: "Are these men in love with me — or with the chance to cash in on my publicity value? Would they like to marry ME or my income?" Any girl as shrewd as Sonja Henie is apt to reach conclusions that are not conducive to happiness.

That's one of the penalties young girls must pay for being too famous and too rich — for achieving a freak position which, as far as the important artificialities are concerned, places them far above the reach of any conscientious young swain. All of which, of course, is a break for elderly brokers.

One of our best-known local "reds" button-holed me today to express his conviction, which he claims is shared by everyone of his political persuasion, that Darryl Zanuck's only reason for purchasing the John Steinbeck novel "Grapes of Wrath," was to "bury" it forever and make certain no other less discreet producer might screen it. In view of the fact that Zanuck paid $75,000 for the screen rights, the story should at least have an expensive tombstone.

THE HOLLYWOOD PARADE, Marjorie Weaver, Fox starlet — With true feminine inconsistency Miss Weaver bought a radio because of its "No stoop, no squall" feature and, next day, purchased an exercise machine.

... Louise Campbell — has the un-attractive habit of signing her married name, (Mrs. Horace McAlister) to all fan mail.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., extremist — Mr. Fairbanks' latest idea is to produce screen biographies of the major presidential candidates for 1940. Feature-length pictures — or two-reel comedies?

Confirmation Rites Will be Held Sunday

Stephensville — Confirmation services will be conducted at St. Paul's Lutheran church at 10 o'clock Sunday morning by the Rev. Emil Redlin.

The class includes Adeline Lemke, Veronica Daughy, Isabelle Erke, Marion Parthie, Bernice Loos, Joyce and June Douglas.

Miss Clare Main, Sheboygan, is spending her summer vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Main.

A children's program will be given at the Methodist church at 8 o'clock Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnum, attended the funeral of the latter's brother, Frank Hoier, at Hortonville Saturday afternoon. Other relatives attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Ira Morack and daughter Lola Mae.

Llewellyn Morack, Madison, spent the weekend at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Morack.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Jolin and family, Gillett, spent the weekend at the G. A. Jolin home. They returned recently from a trip to Boston, New York and Washington, D. C. Other members of the family who spent father's day at the Jolin home included Mr. and Mrs. Russell Johnson, Shiocton; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Jolin, Appleton; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Erke and daughter Becky, Green Bay, and Miss Agnes Jolin.

Miss Evelyn Schroth, a student at the university of Wisconsin, returned here to spend the summer months at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schroth.

Trends Mixed in Current Demand For Finished Steel

Seasonal Decline in New Business Arrests Recent Production Upturn

Cleveland — Mixed trends prevail in finished steel demand. Changes in the aggregate are slight, but a tendency for new business to taper seasonally in some directions is a factor in arresting the recent upturn in ingot production, according to magazine Steel.

Steelmaking last week was off 1 point to 52.5 per cent, compared with 27 per cent a year ago. Only moderate fluctuations in output are in prospect the next several weeks, but the resumption of any extended upturn will require greater support than currently is being received from the automotive industry. This is expected the latter part of next quarter.

Labor Clouds Outlook

Labor continues a cloud in the automotive outlook despite settlement of recent strikes at Detroit and Flint. Steel releases for new model parts, while still light, are gaining gradually, but labor developments may delay plans for the summer changeover in production from current models.

Automobile retail sales held the comparative improvement noted the past few weeks, and assemblies are slow to be trimmed. Last week's total of 78,305 units, highest in four weeks, was a gain of 13,000 but resulted entirely from a sharp rise by Chrysler to compensate for its recent shutdown during the Briggs strike. General Motors increased from 39,640 units to 31,910 in the face of the attempted UAW-AFL strike and Chrysler from 8145 to 22,900. Ford slipped from 17,800 to 15,500 and all others from 8820 to 7995. Total output was 87 per cent larger than a year ago.

Defer Programs

Most railroads still defer major programs for equipment buying. Further improvement in carloadings and passage of legislation favorable to the carriers conceivably might stimulate car building in the second half, but steel producers are not counting on any marked revival in demand from this source soon. Last week's dip in steelmaking resulted largely from lower sched-

Automobile retail sales held the comparative improvement noted the past few weeks, and assemblies are slow to be trimmed. Last week's total of 78,305 units, highest in four weeks, was a gain of 13,000 but resulted entirely from a sharp rise by Chrysler to compensate for its recent shutdown during the Briggs strike. General Motors increased from 39,640 units to 31,910 in the face of the attempted UAW-AFL strike and Chrysler from 8145 to 22,900. Ford slipped from 17,800 to 15,500 and all others from 8820 to 7995. Total output was 87 per cent larger than a year ago.

Steelmaking last week was off 1 point to 52.5 per cent, compared with 27 per cent a year ago. Only moderate fluctuations in output are in prospect the next several weeks, but the resumption of any extended upturn will require greater support than currently is being received from the automotive industry. This is expected the latter part of next quarter.

Labor Clouds Outlook

Labor continues a cloud in the automotive outlook despite settlement of recent strikes at Detroit and Flint. Steel releases for new model parts, while still light, are gaining gradually, but labor developments may delay plans for the summer changeover in production from current models.

Wheat Allotment For County Under AAA Is 819 Acres

Announcement Is Made Early So Farmers Can Plan for Winter Planting

Outagamie county's wheat allotment for 1940 will be 819 acres, according to Joseph Garvey, chairman of the county agricultural conservation committee.

Because the county allotments are available nearly two months earlier this year, farmers, it is explained, will have their farm allotments well in advance of the winter planting season.

Participation in all phases of the national wheat program is based on the farm wheat allotment. By receiving his allotment before planting time, a farmer can plan his farm operations so that he will become eligible for conservation payments, price adjustment payments and wheat loans when they are made. He also can take out crop insurance upon as much wheat acreage as his allotment provides.

The state allotment has been set at 99,128 acres which is 99 per cent larger than the 1939 allotment of 90,203 acres, Garvey reported. Nearly 38,000 farmers in the state are expected to participate in this year's program.

A summer event sponsored jointly by the county Holstein, Brown Swiss, Guernsey and Jersey breeders associations of the county may be held this summer. A meeting of officers of the various groups will be called next week by J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent, to decide on the proposal.

Townsend May Form New Political Party

Chicago—(P)—Dr. Francis E. Townsend announced Tuesday that he would call for the fourth national convention of the Townsend national recovery plan, at Indianapolis June 22 to 25, would consider the "possibility" of forming a new political party to foster his movement.

The 72-year old founder of the plan for $200-a-month old age retirement pensions said in a statement issued at the headquarters that if the existing political parties did not cooperate in making his plan law, proponents of the plan would set about replacing them.

"If the two existing parties retain their fool reactionary attitude there is only one thing to do—shove them out of the way," he said.

Dr. Townsend added, however, that "the way is open to both of them; the one that will go the furthest and the one that will listen to." He said it would "red-pete matters" if the Townsend plan advocates could use existing party machinery.

U. S. Secret Service 75 Years Old but Doesn't Talk Much About Suppression of Crime

BY EDDY GILMORE
Washington—(P)—Frank J. Wilson, chief of the United States Secret Service, broke down Tuesday and made one of the organization's few public statements.

"The service," he said, "is 75 years old this year."

If you trace the history of this division of the treasury, you'll find Wilson said a mouthful for his close-mouthed outfit.

In a land which has become public-conscious, the secret service has never talked—about itself. It appeared that the only reason Wilson announced the anniversary is that his supervising agents, gathered from all parts of the nation for their annual conference, will devote special sessions to observation of it. The remainder of the conference will give attention to more thorough suppression of counterfeiting and the problem of educating the public to detect phony money.

One reason for the continued existence of the service was William H. Moran, its chief for 54 years who retired two years ago.

The little gray man with the droopy mustache abhorred the idea of talking about his work and said so.

Once pressed for details about the excellent work of his division, Moran told how he had broken up a counterfeiting ring in Chicago.

"A postman," he said, "was delivering his letters when he was hit on the head with a hard dollar. He picked it up. It was hot. He told us about it, gave us the address of the house he was passing, and we solved the case."

Another of the service's self-deprecating stories concerns breaking up a counterfeiting Philadelphia syndicate.

A seven-year-old boy walked into a butcher shop, made a purchase and gave the butcher a handful of coins. The tradesman looked them over.

"Why, these are no good," he said. Irritated, the boy looked at the butcher and replied: "Oh, yes they are—daddy just made 'em."

Outlook for Butter, Cheese Reported Firm

The recent announcement of the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation that it will buy 45 million pounds of American cheese should add considerable strength to the cheese market and be reflected in prices paid to Wisconsin farmers, in the opinion of Ralph E. Ammon, director of the state department of agriculture and markets.

Ammon bases this statement on two significant facts: On June 1 there were 15 million pounds less American cheese in cold storage than a year ago. 2. For the first four months of this year there was a decrease of 10.1 per cent in production as compared with the same period last year.

Although cold storage holdings of butter on June 1 were considerably higher than in June of last year, the fact that the government is buying 12 million pounds of evaporated milk, in addition to the large cheese purchase, should cancel to a large extent the effect of the higher holdings of butter, he stated.

ate muscle action in the intestines, and as a tonic laxative to relieve sick headaches and that loopy feeling and dizziness caused by constipation. Williams Formula works as a mild diuretic on the kidneys to increase the flow of urine and to reduce acid concentration. It helps build up the quality of iron-poor blood by containing iron for increasing the hemoglobin content of blood deficient in iron. If you are feeling "below par" and need a good spring tonic to help give you "zip and go," ask Ford Hopkins Drug Store today for a bottle of Williams Formula, and make up a gallon of this fine medicine in your own home. Or, if you prefer, you can make smaller quantities in proportion, such as a teaspoonful to a cup of water, and drink it before meals. Try this just a few days for that "million dollar feeling." Be sure you ask for Williams Formula marked "Strengthened" on the bottle. That's concentrated, and so economical.

Strawberry Crop Large in State

Yield Expected to be Bigger Than Last Year, Survey Reveals

Wisconsin's strawberry crop is expected to be larger than that harvested last year, according to a crop reporting service bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent. An increase in strawberry production also is expected for the United States. The crop in Outagamie county will be beautiful, Magnus reported.

Although the yield per acre may be below that of last year, the strawberry crop in the state probably will be larger because of the increase in acreage as compared with that of a year ago. Unfavorable weather conditions reduced prospective yields in some areas.

Present estimates, however, show there will be about 5,952,000 quarts of strawberries produced in the state this year. The crop last year was estimated at 4,800,000 quarts. The average production for the 10 years, 1928-37, is reported at 2,184,000 quarts for Wisconsin.

It is estimated that the state has 3,300 acres of strawberries this year compared with 2,500 acres a year ago. Estimates for the 10 years show an average acreage of 1,820 for Wisconsin.

Attention Farmers!

If your Concrete Silo is in bad shape and needs repairs, we are in a position to give you a real job.

WHAT WE MEAN IS THIS: We have a scaffold to go up and down in your silo so as to make working as working on the ground.

THE JOB WE DO IS: We thoroughly clean and wash your silo and we use water resisting cement. We plaster your silo in the same manner your house is plastered. In other words when we say we over-haul your silo, we mean what we say and guarantee the job. The silo will be better than new as no moisture can penetrate into the silo walls thereafter, and the silage is kept moist and fresh as in an earthen jar. So if you are in need for such work or job to be done, Write or Call A. C. KRUEGER, Marion, Wisconsin, and get an estimate on your job.

Speak soon, don't wait as we have been kept very busy doing such work.

So, remember when once the job is done it is done for years to come as it gets hard as slate. Save your feed, a good silo is like a good pork barrel or an earthen jar, as it is useless to farm and put your cornstalks in a poor silo and share-crop and waste one-third or more. So, why not repair your silo.

We specialize in Silo Building and Repair Work.

IN THE BIG HIGH SCHOOL GAME OF THE SEASON, BROTHER WILLIE STRUCK OUT WITH THE BASES FULL!

Democrats and Progressives Lean Toward Coalition but Both Want To Preserve Identity of Parties

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison — In the councils of Wisconsin's liberal party leaders during the last few weeks conversations have taken place which may produce some of the most interesting political developments in the country as a prelude to the 1940 presidential campaign.

With a call from Wisconsin New Dealers for a third Roosevelt term attracting nationwide attention, all signs now point toward an attempt to forge the Democrats and the Progressives into a political union which will have the primary purpose of assisting the New Deal candidate next year, and the secondary but also highly important purpose of reelecting Senator Robert M. La Follette as a New Dealer and defeating the Republican state administration at home.

The possibility of a Progressive-Democratic alliance has been discussed by politicians in both organizations at private meetings for several weeks.

The dispatching of two of Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet aides to Wisconsin last weekend clinched the speculation. Cabinet officers don't travel from Washington to Wisconsin to shake hands, observers concluded. Nor do two of them come at once, one urging progressive unity on the Democratic alignment, the other praising the leaders of the Progressives in the most unqualified language.

However, all aspects of the apparently impending alliance are not yet clear to students of state politics. Nor are they entirely clear, probably, to the politicians of both parties.

Leave No Doubts

It is to be noted that the official spokesmen for both Progressives and Democrats are far less frank than are the emissaries of the New Deal. Attorney General Frank Murphy and Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, who left no doubts in the minds of their audiences where they stand. Washington, according to their remarks, wants the LaFollette Progressives and the Democratic New Dealers to get together for next year; the details are local problems. Let the local politicians iron them out.

It is apparent, most observers agree, that Washington is interested primarily in getting a Wisconsin instructed slate of delegates to the 1940 Democratic convention.

That such an end will be attained is the wish of both Progressives and Democrats. They will work together on delegates.

The second local purpose of any coalition, the reelection of Senator LaFollette, will present a more delicate problem.

The Progressives want LaFollette reelected. Senator LaFollette, after 14 years in Washington, doubtless would like to return there next year. New Deal Democrats know that with Senator Duffy out of the picture, they will be hard put to it to find a candidate of their own to run for the job. They acknowledge too, Roosevelt's preference for LaFollette, admit that LaFollette's New Deal record as such is good. Therefore they are willing to support him.

Moreover, some of them are willing to come out and say that they will support him on any condition. Among them are Gerald Clifford of Green Bay, old-time Eighth district leader and once candidate for congress.

But the recently reorganized Democratic New Deal people in Wisconsin—and from now on the Democratic Party Organization of Wisconsin, because of its dominant activity and obvious recognition by the White House, will be considered as the Democratic party in the state—won't agree with Clifford that the Democrats ought to support LaFollette on the Progressive ticket if he chooses to remain there.

These Democratic leaders will be glad to support LaFollette, but will insist that he run as a Democrat. They are anxious to rebuild their party, and rebuilding a party necessitates party candidates. By helping Progressives they will not attain independent party standing, but will be merely an adjunct of the LaFollette family organization.

Whether the LaFollettes or any of their inner circle in the party will consent to subordinate the Progressive label and independent identity for the sake of assuring LaFollette's reelection is considered doubtful. Many party men hold it to be a backward step, in view of the severance of Republican party connections five years ago.

Moreover, many of the up-state Progressives, including some in the legislature who feel their oats because they managed to be elected last fall in the face of crushing defeat for the LaFollette state ticket, will frown on any suggestion that they run as Democrats. They have solid Progressive counties in the north, where the Democratic strength is negligible, they point out.

Another Coalition

Some people hold to the belief that an agreement may be reached by which the Democrats' choice their man to run in the Progressive primary for governor, that the Democrats and Progressives join to nominate him, that the Democrats in turn support LaFollette, and that the two put a coalition ticket into the field against the Republicans in the fall under the Progressive banner.

Such a man, Democrats and Progressives have suggested, could be former congressman James Hughes of De Pere, an ardent New Dealer and friendly to many highly placed Progressives.

Just now, however, it appears likely that nothing definite will be said or done until the leaders of both parties feel their way around a little more. The LaFollette brothers themselves are non-committal. At a conference of local captains with Senator Bob a few nights ago the question of a Democratic alliance was put to him bluntly and he evaded it.

The Democratic organization led by Gustave J. Keller, Appleton, at the same time is feeling more than ordinarily confident of itself because of the substantial strides it has taken in organization work recently.

Both will bargain for the best terms they can get.

That the New Dealers want the Progressives is apparent from Attorney General Murphy's remarks about the LaFollettes. He referred to LaFollette Sr. as "the prince of patriots," the LaFollettes collectively as "the best political stock in America."
